More motels due?

By BABS COROVESSIS

A STUDY session on the feasibility of rezoning parts of the commercial district in Carmel to allow more motels will be discussed by the Carmel Planning Commission at 4 p.m. Wednesday, Feb. 25.

The meeting, to be held in City Hall, is a study session on the rezoning idea and not a public hearing. If the idea makes it past the discussion stage, more public hearings would be held later. The plan is to allow more motels, but not more tourist-oriented retail businesses.

The subject is the outgrowth of a Dec. 17 Planning Commission meeting at which Dr. Donald Davidson, a commission member, requested a study to determine the feasibility of re-zoning the C-1-S district (motels, residential units and retail) to

New mall, 14 shops planned

PARADISE, a store at Ocean and Dolores, will be subdivided into 14 shops opening into a mall area, according to owner Paul Laub.

Tentative name for the mall is Paradise Plaza.

Laub estimated the entire project will be completed by March 1. Each shop will be separately run, with spaces rented under five-year leases, he said. Laub said he is taking lease applications now, but would not give the cost of leases.

Items to be sold in the shops will be jewelry, shoes, clothing, household items, furniture and "finer things for men, women and the home," Laub said.

The store area will be carpeted, and each shop will be 116 to 350 square feet, Laub said. Each shop space also will have 120 square feet of storage and office space downstairs, he said.

Project manager for the building is David Gordon.

The building formerly was Crocker Bank.

Caught at the mouth

TWO STEELHEAD fishermen (above) were trapped briefly on the south side of the Carmel River Sunday, Feb. 15, when the river mouth was opened by other fishermen using their bare hands and a shovel. The inches-wide trickle quickly became a torrent and trapped the pair. Braving the waist high flow and heavy surf, (left), the fishermen, one just out of the photo, made the crossing safely. More photos are on page 3.

Carmel to need more housing, AMBAG says

By BABS COROVESSIS

CARMEL WILL NEED 218 more housing units and Monterey County 25,623 units by 1985, according to a report approved by the Association of Monterey Bay Area Governments (AMBAG) last week and sent to the various cities as an aid in preparing local housing plans.

The study tells what each incorporated city and the rest of the county should have in construction over the next five years to keep pace with projected needs.

All cities and counties must have approved housing plans by Oct. 1. Assembly Bill 2853, which went into effect Jan. 1, requires councils of government throughout California to examine regional housing needs and submit their draft reports to the state Department of Housing and Community Development by July 1. In turn, cities and counties must use those estimates in assembling housing elements for their general plans by Oct. 1.

New construction needed includes 16,307 housing units in 12 incorporated areas and 9,316 in unincorporated areas. Other cities and the estimated construction needs include: Monterey, 1,523; Pacific Grove, 1,029; Salinas, 8,160, and Seaside, 1,349.

The study also estimated that Monterey County will increase in population by 53,900 in the next five years and will add 24,009 housing units.

AMBAG President D. Dan Forbus said the housing study will encourage local governments to provide adequate housing for all economic segments of the community. He noted that the 94-page report being sent to local city and county governments is "advisory and each locality may revise the estimate of its fair share of regional housing needs within 90 days."

The study lists population estimates. For Carmel, a population of 4,756 in 1976 is listed, with a projected population figure of 4,800 by 1984 — an increase of only 44 persons, or a change of one percent in 10 years.

The estimated "appropriate share" of lower-income households by 1985 is a forecasted 36.3 percent increase needed for Carmel — from 777 to 1,059.

The study estimated the annual average increase in all households in Carmel is 17, with the annual average increase in all lower-income households being 31.

According to Warren Freeman, AMBAG project manager, Monterey County will have a 19.8 percent boost in population in 1985 from 1976; an estimated 289,000 persons will be living in the county.

Data on low-income households (those that receive less than 80 percent of the median household income) will increase nearly 26 percent by 1985, AMBAG predicts.

Median household income in Monterey County is $17,400, according to the federal Department of Housing and Urban Development.

Freeman said that only four years ago the median income was $11,800. "That's quite a jump in just four years," he told the AMBAG board when it met Feb. 11.

EMPLOYMENT forecasts on which housing needs are based show a 28 percent increase in the work force during 1975-85. The fastest growing part of the local economy will be tourism, according to consultant Recht Hausrath and Associates. In contrast, agriculture, which is one-third of Monterey County's economic base, will grow "only slightly" and its share of the total economy is expected to decline.

The report also notes that county rental vacancies will drop by 6.2 percent in 1985, and a 33.3 percent increase is expected in the number of people traveling outside the county to work.

Freeman cautioned that not all figures in the report are up to

Book costs plague library

By BABS COROVESSIS

LIBRARY DIRECTOR Jo Childers does not claim to judge a book by its cover, but she and her calculator do judge that book costs are skyrocketing.

The budget at Harrison Memorial Library allocates $50,000 annually for book purchases, and that amount is no longer enough, Mrs. Childers claimed.

Fifty grand not too long ago would buy about 4,500 books for the library. Now, with rising book costs, Mrs. Childers said that amount will buy only 2,500 books.

Those figures even include discounts that libraries receive from publishing companies. The latest average book price is $19.80; in 1978-79 the average book price was $11, Mrs. Childers said.

Part of the reason for the hefty price is that the cost of reference books has increased rapidly and they are high priority for the library.

Purchase of new books makes up only about 13½ percent of total library expenditures, but Mrs. Childers said that amount is far below the amount recommended by the American Library Association.

For that reason, she plans to ask the Library Board for more money for books in her next budget. "Thirteen and a half percent is just not enough to be adequate," she said. "I feel $50,000 is woefully inadequate."

THE COST of books is not Mrs. Childers' only problem with books.

Not enough space to put them is a continuing issue, she said, and part of the push behind the proposed 15,500-square-foot library annex. With its construction, library needs for the next 20 years should be met, Mrs. Childers said.

Meanwhile, Mrs. Childers and her staff play a game of musical books. "Don't ask me where we put them. We just keep shifting. Some disappear or get lost, and there is some weeding out of those no longer valid," she said.

Still, even with all that, Harrison Memorial Library has more than 80,000 books. Some are stored at Sunset Center, which also contains the library's technical processing center and books and periodicals used less frequently.

Besides its collection of books, "part of the appeal of the library is its ambience," Mrs. Childers said.

"This is no hush-hush library. It's a very active, busy library, but still we have no quiet rooms. Libraries should have places of refuge, and with the annex we will."

As proposed, the annex will have new quarters for children's programs. It is to contain a special humidity-controlled room to keep special materials from being damaged. It also will have some quiet study areas.

And of course, the annex is scheduled to have a fireplace, as does the main library building.

The annex will house the department now at Sunset Center. "That way instead of going six blocks, we can go just across the street to retrieve things," Mrs. Childers said. It also will contain movable shelves.

One thing is certain: "This will remain the main library, without question. This place is more than a library; it's an institution around here," Mrs. Childers said.

Meanwhile, despite high-priced books and crowded conditions, the library staff takes it all in stride.

"We just keep shifting and replanning and redesigning the space we have to work with here.

"It proves the resourcefulness of the staff," Mrs. Childers said.

date, and that some data was gathered in 1976. He asked AMBAG representatives to provide more current information before the final draft of the report is prepared and sent to the state.

AMBAG will meet again Wednesday, March 11, at 7:30 p.m. in Salinas City Hall.

Frank Lloyd and the stump of the tree cut down last week in front of Wells Fargo Bank on San Carlos.

Oak with fungus is not among us

By BABS COROVESSIS

AN AILING OAK tree in Carmel got the ax shortly before dawn Feb. 10 — less than 10 hours after the City Council informally agreed efforts should be made to save it.

The issue put City Councilman Frank Lloyd and City Forester Greg D'Ambrosio at odds.

The tree, next to Wells Fargo Bank in a mini-park on San Carlos, was scheduled to be on the council tour of inspection in March after Lloyd urged that efforts should be made to save it.

Lloyd claimed he had discussed the matter with D'Ambrosio early Monday, before the council meeting, and was told that it was scheduled for cutting.

"What he did not say was it was scheduled for cutting at 4 a.m. the next day," Lloyd claimed. "All he said was it was scheduled to be cut. I pleaded with him to give the tree one more chance."

D'Ambrosio said if Lloyd had any complaints the two should "discuss it outside of the newspapers."

The city forester said the 18-inch-diameter tree had severe oak root fungus problems which the city had been treating unsuccessfully for six or seven years. He said the tree was becoming a hazard, so was cut.

D'Ambrosio said another tree will be put in its place "that will be better than the tree there before."

"If Councilman Lloyd was that concerned over the tree, why did he walk from me and say 'oh, okay' when I told him about the condition of the tree?" D'Ambrosio questioned.

"He should have told me he was bringing it up in City Council. I sent my crew in early to cut it before traffic started and people were out. We received no information about the council decision. If it had really been important, you would think some effort would have been made to reach me."

Lloyd said he also spoke with City Administrator Doug Peterson and recommended that in cases of "significant public trees on city property that advance notice be given before cutting.

"I feel the whole thing is an unfortunate coincidence. I have expressed my unhappiness to the city administrator that more efforts weren't made to save a valuable oak tree. You can build a mini-park in a week, but you can't grow a good oak tree in under 40 years."

Lloyd also claimed that the mini-park, with all its concrete, might have harmed the tree by causing rot since other plants and flowers in the area are watered.

Lloyd said he intended no further action on the matter, but said he was disappointed over "vague communications."

He also questioned why D'Ambrosio was not at the council meeting.

Youth curfew used six times, police say

By BABS COROVESSIS

ONLY HALF A DOZEN violations of Carmel's teen-age curfew ordinance have occurred since it went into effect in mid-November, according to Police Chief William Ellis.

"We haven't had to use the curfew ordinance more than six times to detain youths," Ellis said last week.

The police see the ordinance primarily as a tool to "use for the benefit of residents and youngsters as well," he said.

Youths are not arrested, but if found out late at night they are detained until their parents are contacted.

The ordinance, approved by the City Council 3-2, went into effect Nov. 12. It prohibits persons 17 and younger from loitering in public places between 11 p.m. and daybreak.

Youths must be accompanied by a parent or guardian or be on a legitimate errand if out after curfew, according to the ordinance.

Most of the loitering problems are at Devendorf Park and on Scenic Road at the beach, police said.

Ellis said the curfew has improved the Scenic Road area. "We had to lay some law down to get the area under control and have people respect the rights of others," he said.

"The ordinance was not meant to run youths off the street if they have a reason to be out. But when gathering in large groups daily or if narcotics are involved, we are responsible for their welfare.

"And, having the law helps us control outsiders causing trouble here."

Ellis said the curfew law has helped break group gatherings late at night, particularly on the beach.

"Our officers don't threaten or harass anyone," he said. "We just remind them that it's past curfew and tell them to get off the streets and go home."

The law has been used as a reminder, but strict enforcement has been necessary only a few times, he said.

Outdoor map is approved

By BABS COROVESSIS

THE CONTROVERSIAL illustrated map of Carmel being painted on a board near Neilsen's Market on San Carlos has been approved by the Design Review Committee of the Carmel Planning Commission.

The map, criticized by some former city officials as making the city look like "Disneyland North," was to have been discussed at a Planning Commission meeting Wednesday, Feb. 18.

Based on letters from artists and residents favoring the new map, it might have a good chance to secure Planning Commission approval.

Accompanying the application by market owner Mervin Sutton for a design review application were seven letters from residents praising the map.

Earlier, the Planning Commission argued that at the time it approved market construction, the approval included maintaining an old map of Carmel and the entire Peninsula.

CARMEL ARTIST Karen Nagano said the map being painted by Carole Minou in conjunction with Bill Bates "will be an invaluable contribution to the richness and beauty of this community and will be a meaningful expression of Carmel's ongoing commitment to the arts."

Mrs. Sandra Farrell of Carmel supported the mural map and said "it is very much in keeping with the 'Carmel charm' we residents have long enjoyed . . . I hope the mural goes up without any further delay."

Businessman Romayne L. Hill said the map plans "look colorful and delightful. I find this design a great improvement over the old green Peninsula with the big red Texaco star." He said it would be a great addition to the business district and urged the commission not to delay the map's completion.

Gallery owner Jack Laycox also praised the map and said to compare the current map, "which is an artist's rendering of our village," with the former map in the old Leidig Service Station "seems out of order."

"The fact that many 'old timers' remember that old map with affection should not take away from the qualities of the current more aesthetic version now in process," Laycox said. If the two maps were compared, "the new map would win hands down . . . as a more worthy addition to our village street scene," he added.

Support also came from Michael Gibbs of Carmel, who said he looked forward "to seeing the completion of this charming addition to Carmel."

A more unusual, but also supportive letter came from Bob Campbell. He wrote: "Ask not where Ebenezer Scrooge has gone. He lives in Carmel and is the joyless fellow who complains about the large and colorful poster map designed by Carole Minou and decorated with the beloved cartoons of Bill Bates.

"All the artists I know declare it to be, as should anyone with a humanly affectionate eye, a work of wit, beauty, and great excellence. That anyone should object to something that is in perfect keeping with the happy, welcoming spirit of Carmel dismays me. Are we to allow meanness to destroy exuberance?"

Brenda Morrison, past president of the Carmel Art Association, wrote that as a 20-year resident of Carmel she had seen a lot of changes in the town, "many of which I do not like. Few have done anything to add to the charm of our town. One of these few is the new and delightful mural at Nielsen's Market."

The Planning Commission had a heated discussion over the map at its Jan. 21 meeting and voted 5-2 to direct city staff to tell Sutton that the map needed to come before the commission for design review.

Much of the commission meeting that night was arguing over what the map was — a sign, a mural, a billboard or a cartoon.

Rezoning for more motels studied

C-1-L (motels and residential) only. The stated purpose would be to control the growth of retail tourist business. Davidson said pros and cons on the desirability of more motels and residential units next to the central business district should be viewed from hostelry taxes being a more stable income for the city than retail sales tax.

Davidson said the tradition since the mid-1950s to stop the growth of motels in Carmel may be inappropriate now. Additional motel rooms would attract visitors who contribute to the community and also shop and eat here, he said.

The rezoning would provide a buffer area between the central business district (C-1-C) and the residential zone, he noted at the December meeting.

HE ALSO SAID that Carmel residents concerned about the booming tourism may have focused their dissatisfaction with tourists on the motel issue. Instead, some focus shold be placed on commercial retail expahsion, he said.

"In this one square mile town, 15 percent of it is commercial. That is very high," Davidson said. The number of motel rooms has remained at 915 to 920, he said. In contrast, the number of new businesses applying for city license average 10 to 12 each month, Davidson noted. "That is not a sign of commercial health," he added.

He said one way to make sure the C-1-S zone (which presently has any use that a C-1-C zone has) does not turn into retail sales areas is to create a zone around it of motels to be a buffer between retail sales area and residential area.

Carmel Woods hydrants rapped

By STEVE HELLMAN

RESIDENTS OF A CARMEL WOODS subdivision built in 1927 have complained to Monterey County that their neighborhood hydrants are outmoded and inadequate for firefighting.

A petition with signatures from 65 residents calling for an investigation of the hydrants was sent to the county Board of Supervisors Jan. 29 after fires damaged one home and destroyed another within one month.

Residents on Portola Road, San Pedro Lane, San Mateo Avenue and San Luis Avenue maintain that the hydrants installed more than 50 years ago may not have sufficient water pressure.

Their petition was referred to the county Public Works Department, which is studying the hydrants with state Department of Forestry fire officials and California-American Water Co., owner of the hydrant lines.

A report on the condition of the lines will be presented to the supervisors within two weeks, according to Fire Marshal Tom Perkins.

"WE'RE AFRAID," said J.M. Vessel, who lives on San Pedro Lane.

"The hydrants are very weak."

A fire Dec. 14 caused $400,000 to a home at 24225 San Pedro Lane. By the time firefighters were able to extinguish the blaze, only the garage was left. Vessel said that fire and another on San Luis Lane in January have caused great concern among the residents.

"We were told the power of the hydrants was not enough," he said.

The residents' petition notes that the water lines were installed when there were very few houses in the area, and that with the neighborhood now built up, the water pressure in the hydrants is not comparable to that required in new subdivisions.

"The system has a long history of being inadequate," said Richard Wenzlik, an engineer with the county Public Works Department.

He confirmed that his department and fire officials consider some of the hydrant lines inadequate, but added that replacing the lines is up to the owner, Cal-Am.

"In similar situations," Wenzlik said, "Cal-Am has made improvements to lines as part of their maintenance program."

If the study of the hydrants shows major, expensive work is needed, Wenzlik said it is possible that residents will have to provide additional financing. The money would be raised through assessments to homeowners in County Service Area 43, the fire protection district which covers Carmel Woods, Wenzlik explained.

Fire Marshal Perkins confirmed that some substandard two-inch lines will have to be replaced with six-inch lines. He said, however, that Cal-Am does not normally replace lines until they have aged, become a maintenance problem or outlived their usefulness.

'We're trying to get Cal-Am to budget to replace the lines," he said, "but there is no legal requirement for the company to replace all of them."

State and county officials are working with Cal-Am engineers to test the flows in the old lines, pinpoint the weak sections and devise the best plan for replacing lines with a minimum of work and cost while maximizing the flow capacities, Perkins said.

The government agencies and Cal-Am have successfully worked out a solution to a similiar hydrant problem in another area within Cal-Am's service boundary, Perkins said.

He advised, however, that it was ultimately Cal-Am's decision on how soon the lines in Carmel Woods can be replaced, and that depends mainly on the company's budget considerations.

Dale McInturf of the Carmel Hill fire station demonstrates low flow in a standpipe on San Pedro Lane.

WAYNE MILLINGTON, chief engineer for Cal-Am, said last week that the company had not decided on a course of action.

"Right now," Millington said, "we don't know the extent of their problem."

He confirmed that normally the water utility does not replace hydrant mains unless there is a leak or a loss of pressure that affects regular domestic water use.

The company's rate structure does not account for replacing hydrant mains or even providing water to fight fires, he said.

"The hydrants were put there as a convenience," he said.

The company in the past has replaced hydrant mains, Millington said, but sometimes the work required financing from both sides, the company and residents.

Hobby becomes their business

By FLORENCE MASON

CYPRESS MANAGEMENT INC.
J.R. and Sheila Macon

"We turned an investment hobby into a business," Dick Macon said, "and business is excellent. It's one of the best times in history to be buying property."

Macon left the insurance business to make this move and his wife left a job selling advertising for TV Views. Now he is president of the management corporation and Mrs. Macon is secretary-treasurer. Doug Roberts of Pacific Grove is their vice president.

Cypress Management takes over for day-to-day management of apartment buildings bought by a real estate syndicate, the Monterey Peninsula Investment Group. When a partnership has been set up and investors have been brought in, activity shifts to the offices on Via Nona Marie (off Carmel Rancho Boulevard) and to Dick Macon, the managing general partner of the group.

So far, all the apartments purchased by the group are in the San Joaquin Valley. "That's where the best buys are," Macon told us. "Most of the investors are from the Peninsula, however."

The Macons have been on the Peninsula nine years. It all started as a "sabbatical" from their jobs and home in Fort Lauderdale, Fla. "We bought a Winnebago and traveled around the country looking for a place to live," they said. "We came here, and never left!"

The couple lives in Skyline Forest, sharing their home with 9-year-old Rich, who goes to Carmel Mission School. They are joggers, and Macon plays racquetball and golf when he has the time.

What the Macons were looking for, and found on the Monterey Peninsula, was a less crowded scene, "reasonably good weather" and a home near the ocean. Are they satisfied with their choice, after nine years?

"It's as close to Shangri-La as we could get!" Macon said.

LINDSEY GALLERY
William and Esther Lindsey

"We just got the key today!" With obvious pleasure, William Lindsey reported that the Lindsey Gallery would be open as soon as remodeling (in Del Dono Court, Dolores near Fifth) is finished.

The gallery reflects a long-time interest of the Lindseys. Mrs. Lindsey is a professional artist and, according to her husband, that is her avocation, too. Together they collected art and traveled widely to see good art. During those years, Lindsey worked in other fields, primarily broadcasting. "I've been retired for a while," he said, "and decided to get busy again."

Not newcomers to the area (as are most owners of new businesses in Carmel), the Lindseys have lived here 15 years. Their children are grown and they enjoy a quiet home near Guadalupe and Ocean.

Their gallery will feature traditional American art — oils, watercolors and sculpture.

While painting (still life and florals) is both his wife's vocation and avocation, Lindsey keeps his business and hobbies quite separate. In the latter category: cooking! "I picked it up in my family, which enjoyed that sort of thing," he said. It tends toward the gourmet in style and is done purely for the pleasure it gives him, his wife and their friends.

OFFERING

THE ALTERNATIVES

(a new approach to funeral service)

A selection of services uniquely compatible with contemporary thinking.

"THE PINE"...Cremation without services

"THE CYPRESS"...Cremation with memorial service

"THE OAK"...Burial without formality

"THE MAPLE"...The traditional Service

PREPLANNING IS A LOGICAL PART OF THIS CONCEPT

The advantage of "The Alternatives" is its unlimited flexibility. It can be traditional or contemporary... with or without ritual...small or large...indoors or outdoors...religious or not...whatever the family feels should be the appropriate tribute.

Field hockey stars chosen

By ELIZABETH SARET

THE CARMEL HIGH SCHOOL girls' field hockey team finished its league season in second place, half a game behind Santa Catalina.

Carmel's final game of the season was a 2-2 tie with Monterey High Feb. 7. Carmel also finished second in cross-league competition.

Coach Phyllis Crocket and her team have chosen four players to represent them as candidates for the Mission Trails Athletic League All Star field hockey team.

Chosen are:

- Linda Fleager, who has played for four years. Her career record is 41 goals and nine assists. This season she had 25 goals and three assists, a CHS season record.
- Trica Martin has also played for four years. She was All-League in 1980. Mrs. Crocket said, "She is a playmaker and team player." Her lifetime record is 29 goals and 15 assists.
- Brenda La Mica has played field hockey for three years. Mrs. Crockett said, "She plays both offense and defense and is fast, helpful, and very sportsmanlike."
- Trisha Spiches, who has competed the past two years, plays defense. Last year she was the "Most Valuable" junior varsity player at CHS.

padre sports

THE CARMEL varsity basketball team defeated King City 58-49 Feb. 11.

She links mental, physical health

I run up a path in the woods that leads to the crest of a hill overlooking the pond. Today I feel like doing an Indian dance. I imagine myself as an Indian. Sounds of the type I associate with Indian dances come from deep in my abdomen. I am an Indian. — From Dyveke Spino's book New Age Training for Fitness and Health

By TERRI LEE ROBBE

DYVEKE SPINO has her feet firmly planted on the good earth — yet she has the ability to let her mind soar free, reaching outer limits where all parts of her being come together as a unit and function as a whole.

Mrs. Spino is an extraordinary woman. Currently living in Carmel Valley, she was born in Denmark, daughter of a surgeon and an opera singer.

A tall, robust blond in her mid-40s, Mrs. Spino has excelled in many professions. She has been a clinical psychologist, tennis professional, championship distance runner, concert pianist and "new age" coach.

'I use the physical experience to train my mind for inspiration and higher consciousness.'

Her special interest, as she describes it, is in using the athletic energy within each student to release inner power to experience transcedence. Among those she said she has coached are George Leonard, Mark Bricklin, Daniel and Patricia Ellsberg, Dr. Stanley Krippner, Dr. Herbert Otto, Michael Murphy and Dr. John Lilly.

Mrs. Spino and her ex-husband, Mike Spino, were co-founders and co-directors of the Esalen Sports Center in Big Sur. She has trained Olympic and world-class runners such as Jim Waste, a U.S. Masters Championship runner, and said she was the only woman certified to teach the training methods of master Olympic coach Percy Wells Cerutty, under whom she trained.

She has taught college courses in new types of sport training and lifestyle fitness. Her most recent class in this area was a seminar on "tennis flow" at Monterey Peninsula College in 1978.

MRS. SPINO, who had been running 10 to 17 miles daily, said she recently stopped that to do endurance ocean swimming.

"I feel that giving my body a rest from long-distance running is my way of avoiding an injury and constantly renewing my passion for the sport," she said. "I am not a competitive athlete. I use the physical experience to train my mind for inspiration and higher consciousness."

Dyveko Spino limbers up.

Raised by a Christian Scientist aunt, Mrs. Spino, considered a musical prodigy, was enrolled at Peabody Conservatory in Baltimore at age 5. Her aunt, a professor at the conservatory, was also one of her teachers.

"She was a gentle and loving woman who was into meditation and self-healing," said Mrs. Spino. "She taught me about the powers of the mind and attunement. I didn't know it at that time, but I was learning to use altered states of consciousness."

Mrs. Spino said that while practicing scores, her aunt would tell her about the composer and the history of the country where the music originated.

"I saw music as a very living process — like a tree," she said. "During my entire childhood I had rich fantasies and studied intensely. So, at a very early age I felt attuned — like a citizen of the world connected to history."

At age 27 she said she was diagnosed as having cancer.

"This disease has killed women in my family for three generations, including my mother" said Mrs. Spino. "I was determined that it wasn't going to kill me."

While in the hospital she said she read everything she could get her hands on about people, such as those in concentration camps, surviving against incredible odds.

"I identified with these people and visualized myself at home — healthy and happy," she said.

She said that within a year there was no trace of cancer in her body. She then turned to the study of psychology, receiving her Ph.D from Berkeley in 1968.

Her work in clinical psychology and with disturbed adolescents was satisfying, said Mrs. Spino. "but not enough.

"I became very disillusioned with clinical psychology. I wanted to get people outdoors, in touch with their bodies, so I traded my office for a pair of running shoes and held fitness classes on Mt. Tamalpais."

She uses methods from holistic health circles: energy raising and unblocking techniques drawn from Reichian and Feldenkrais bodywork, structural alignment therapies including yoga, osteopathy, rolfing, exercise physiology, fitness evaluation and specific sports instruction.

"I was sick and tired of watching people being sent to state hospitals, seeing hypoglycemic mothers put on drugs and kids committing suicide after bad drug experiences," said Mrs. Spino. "I simply decided I was going to search for alternative ways of inspiring people to health and beauty and the upper limits of human function — so I began."

She said mental and spiritual health are tied to physical health.

"When you do continuous exercises over a 40-minute period, there's a substance released in the brain — endorphin — a form of pain killer," she said.

"At this point you have also transcended emotional states. That's why people have a natural high after dancing, running or working out — and that high is addictive. My work as a lifestyle coach is to get people addicted to oxygen and an endorphin high rather than addicted to junk food and destructive lifestyles."

MRS. SPINO said she has some psychic ability and a sense of "knowing."

Her interest in honing that ability has led her to study altered consciousness and out-of-body states with both Robert Monroe and John Lilly. She said she also occasionally consults with psychics Ann Armstrong and Helen Palmer.

Her beliefs in "inner power" blend with her experience as an athlete.

She credits her endurance to her early music training.

"I would sometimes practice the piano for five hours and not have any sense of time," she said. "The music opened my creative abilities, the sports my physical abilities."

Comparing running to playing the piano, Mrs. Spino said both are art forms. "Running must be balanced with the discipline of proper preparation and technique," she said. "It involves attitude and cleaning up the nutrition, but the key thing is to run long, slow and on soft pavement and go the distance without worrying about time."

Running should be incorporated with walking and stretching the spine, she said, adding that yoga exercises are best.

FOR THE PAST 15 years, Mrs. Spino has spent time in the Carmel area giving workshops and working on her books.

Her daughter, Terry, a dancer and musician, is her assistant in all her training programs. Together they do multi-media events and are working on the musical score for a film series based on Mrs. Spino's recent book. Mother and daughter will co-star in the 12-part series, which is being produced by Scene Two Productions of Canada.

Her son, Stewart, lives in Vienna, but plans to join his mother in her work in lifestyle and survival training.

Mrs. Spino recently joined the staff of Two Ravens Institute, a wilderness retreat and center for exercise and health. The institute will co-sponsor her training program in the area.

She plans to give short and long-term training programs in fitness and health, and her first workshop will be at Transitions health studio in Monterey on Sunday, Feb. 15.

Tough tots

Preschoolers at the Carmelo and Montessori schools in Carmel Valley and Bay School south of Carmel have been getting a special treat lately in the form of a fun fitness program. The program is being given by the New Dimensions for Living and Learning educational foundation. Harried parents may think that active preschoolers may be the last people to need an exercise program, but according to Nancy Osborne of Carmel, executive director of the foundation, benefits also include increased self-esteem, better body control and fun. Exercises are not strenuous, but rather include games at Carmelo School such as making a human wheelbarrow as done by Marion Zobel and Navarre Bautista (left) and Stacey Gray and Meredith McCormack (above) and swimming on the floor as led by Myra Linder (below).

CHS classmates are trying to make music a career

By TERRI LEE ROBBE

THE USS (pronounced us) band is four young men aged 18 to 20 — all marching to the beat of the same drummer — music.

Two were born and raised in Carmel and Carmel Valley and the other two have lived here most of their lives. They attended Carmel High School together, and now they say their lives have become much like one unit — bound together in the desire for a career in music.

At 20, John Harbert is the oldest member of the group. Harbert, who plays bass and sings, had lived in the same house in Carmel Valley all his life. He has four sisters and one brother, but only he and one sister still live at home with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jason Harbert.

Harbert has a music background from both his parents and grandparents. His grandparents on his father's side played violin professionally and his grandfather was also a minister. Now a teacher at Carmel High School and coach at Robert Louis Stevenson, Harbert plays the violin as a hobby and his wife plays piano.

"When I was about 13 years old my oldest sister's boyfriend taught me to play chords on the guitar," said Harbert. "After that I just taught myself."

Harbert said it was a sense of rebellion that pushed him into wanting a career in music.

"From the time I was very small my father constantly pushed me into all types of sports," he said. "From ages 8 to 13 he forced me to be on the swim team and I grew to hate all sports, especially swimming. I suppose the bad part was that I really was a good swimmer, but being pushed made me hate it all the more."

Harbert said the tension between him and his father finally reached a breaking point and, in the middle of his senior year, he left home.

"We're a very close family," said Harbert, "so my father and I were able to resolve our differences and we now have a mutual respect for one another."

While in grade school Harbert played trumpet for four years. During his high school years he played bass with a local band for three years. About seven months ago Harbert heard that Jim Hearn, another local boy who has his own band, was looking for a bass player so he auditioned. He didn't get the job with Hearn but discovered that Hearn's younger brother, Bill, wanted to get a group together. Within minutes Bill Hearn and Harbert decided to join forces.

Harbert said that he has a wide interest in music and, along with rock, loves classical music.

"I always get a natural high when I'm playing," he said. "The minute I get on stage I get a feeling of total energy. It's a hard feeling to explain, but once you get a taste of it you're always hungry."

THE BAND PRACTICES about three hours daily so the members try to get jobs that won't interfere with their rehearsals.

"None of us is making a big salary," said Harbert, adding that what they do earn goes right back into the band to buy new and better equipment. "It also interferes with dating because there's not much time or money," he said.

'But just because I'm into rock music doesn't mean that I have to get high to play.'

Harbert recently visited his high school counselor to find out what he needs to get into college and study all facets of music.

"I realize that in today's world I'm going to need all the education I can get," said Harbert. "I've signed up for classes at MPC and hope to study writing, performing, voice appreciation, harmony and even teaching."

Competition on the Peninsula is fierce, according to Harbert. "There must be at least 100 bands in the surrounding area," he said. "But we live here and people know us so it's the best place for us to start."

Harbert said that even with all the competition, he's not discouraged. "I'm looking at music as a broad field and not just as my guitar playing," he explained. "Going back to school will also teach me a lot about business. We just might be dealing with business managers who will try to steal the shirts right off our backs."

He has an affinity with Paul McCartney as both are left-handed. "Paul plays left-handed bass with the right type of guitar," said Harbert. "I just turn a right-handed guitar upside down and get the same results.

BILL HEARN plays keyboard, flute and percussion.

He lives in Carmel with his parents, Jim and Gay Hearn, his brother, Jim, and his younger sister. He graduated from Carmel High School in 1979.

Hearn first took drum lessons at age 11, but a short time later decided to study guitar. By 15 he was also playing keyboard, which he now plays for USS.

"I can't remember an age when I didn't love music," said Hearn. "But it was the Beatles and especially John Lennon who were my main influence. It was through them that I really got interested in music — but it was also to fill a deep need within myself."

Hearn admits that he's a complex person who relates best to others through his music. Letting others know what he is really feeling doesn't come easy he said — but in high school he found a way.

"I was into pen and ink drawing," he explained. "I discovered it was a way to let people know how I felt deep inside. I also started writing poetry and from that came song writing."

Using music to express his feeling soon became a way of life for Hearn. He writes most of the songs played by USS. And, in his words, "I have a whole library of finished songs in my head just waiting to come out."

Hearn said his music was also influenced by the tragic shooting of his close friend, Robert Gabel, three years ago.

"We were the closest of friends," said Hearn. "After the shooting, as before, I spent unlimited time with him trying to bring him back. We succeeded to a point and I'm still hoping."

Hearn said his parents have always backed him in whatever he chose to do. They also warned him that the lifestyle of a professional musician could be poisonous.

"I'm not into the wild scene in music or anything else," said Hearn. "I'm just into music. That may sound pretentious, but that's the way it is — that's me."

Hearn said he had no need to use drugs in his music and those same feelings go back to his school days.

"The drug scene at Carmel High was incredible," he said. "But just because I'm into rock music doesn't mean that I have to get high to play. We're very clean people in this band — a compatible group with a very tight bond."

Pursuing success is not top priority with Hearn. "If it happens, that's great," he said. "But that's not why I write music. My music has a message and I want people to hear it. I'm a storyteller and if I put it in music it will be more acceptable. I often change myself into some fictional character when I'm writing so that I can experience the story. When I write it out the music comes with it."

Hearn, who works for a film rental agency, said he isn't afraid of competition. "That's not what's important," he said. "I just know that I have a message to spread in my lifetime and I'm very confident that I will. I have a feeling that we're going to make it, but as far as a money success — if it happens, it happens. But right now the money doesn't mean that much to me."

Hearn, along with the rest of the group, is hoping to create a following of college-age people and older. "Our music is a new beat," said Hearn. "People can dance or just listen because we're very visual as well as musical."

The band members are absolutely "straight" as far as drugs are concerned, said Hearn. "We keep rehearsals tight with no smoking or drinking before or during," he said. "We're very serious with our practicing because that's what's important to all of us."

Hearn said the Carmel area doesn't have much to offer musical groups. "The places around here that do have entertainment want a club band and that's just not us. We're more of a concert band and we all prefer it that way," he said.

Playing concerts means having the right equipment, said Hearn. "Right now we're getting it a piece at a time, but we're all very patient and determined. It takes a lot of sacrifices, but we're in agreement on that too."

Even if times get hard Hearn has no intention of giving up his music. "This is my life profession," he said. "I'm in it and that's where I'm staying. Music is inside of me and I have to get it out."

JOHN PUCCINELLI, 18, talks, eats, sleeps and dreams — music.

He makes it clear to anyone who will listen that if he can't have a career in music, then he wants no career at all.

Puccinelli graduated from Carmel High School in 1980. Since age 6 he has lived in Carmel with his parents, Joe and Marie Puccinelli, and his two brothers, Joey and Bob.

Like his fellow band members, Puccinelli joined the group when it was first formed seven months ago — but music has always been part of his life.

Throughout his school years he sang in the choir. He plays lead guitar and during his sophomore year, he played with a group called Free Flight.

"Jim Hearn is a long-time friend so I frequently sat in on his rehearsals," said Puccinelli. "He was very inspiring to me so I bought a guitar and taught myself how to play."

'The minute I get on stage I get a feeling of total energy.'

Puccinelli had a rough time convincing his parents that music was the right career for him. "In the beginning they thought it was a big waste of time," he said. "My dad thought it was a long shot and not worth the chance. I'm not sure how he feels now, but after we started getting gigs his attitude about my music seemed to change. He also agrees that for right now it's good for me. It keeps me off the streets and occupied."

Puccinelli is quick to admit that music can be a hard and competitive business.

"Things are very slow right now so we all have to work at other jobs just to make ends meet," he said. "We recently played a 45-minute gig at Santa Catalina School and only received $100 which had to be split four ways. But music itself is the thrill — not the money."

On stage is where Puccinelli feels most at home. "I get a rush — a big flow of adrenalin just before I go on stage," he said. "Somehow I become a different person and playing the guitar and singing becomes as natural as breathing. It was a scary feeling the first couple of times, but after that it turned into an excitement for me."

There's no question in Puccinelli's mind that music will be his life's work. "I know it's going to be tough at times and I'm prepared for that," he said. "Once we get a following, things will be different. We're all under 21 so we're getting an early start — and that means we have time to tough it out."

Puccinelli is also interested in the business side of the band and would like to become the booking agent for USS. "I have no fear of knocking on doors or using my leg power if it means getting a good booking," he said.

EIGHTEEN-YEAR-OLD Garth Hattan was born and raised in Carmel.

He has two brothers and two sisters, but he is the only child still living at home with his mother, Mildred Hattan.

Hattan attended Carmel High School but moved to Long Beach for a year and during that time he graduated from Woodrow Wilson High School.

He has nothing but praise for his mother and said that because of her understanding and help he is beginning to achieve his dream of a career in music.

"She was never too busy to spend time with me," said Hattan. "She always kept me off the streets by keeping me involved with sports such as baseball, basketball, flag football, swimming and just about every other sport you can name."

Hattan said his mother was always aware of his love for music and when he was 14 she bought him a good set of drums. "They're a great outlet for the emotions," said Hattan. "Whether I'm happy or angry — I beat the drums."

Throughout school Hattan played in both the marching band and the concert band.

"I guess I got hooked when I played the snare drum in the third grade," he said. "Once I had my own set of drums there was no turning back. I lose all track of time when I'm playing and I want to get better — and better.

"I have a very positive feeling about our group. We're pretty much into the same things and we think alike. We have a unified determination that will carry us through the rough times — and not one of us would ever dream of missing a rehearsal."

ALTHOUGH ALL the members of the band attended Carmel High at the same time, Hattan said none of them were close friends until he formed a friendship with John Harbert during his sophomore year.

"We knew each other existed," he explained. "We just didn't realize that we were all very much involved with music."

Before leaving Carmel for a year in 1979 Hattan and Harbert played with another band called Caribou.

"It's only been the past couple of years that I've made the decision to get into music as a career," Hattan said. "It's one of the toughest professions there is, but it's also one of the most fulfilling."

Being on stage comes easy for Hattan. He said he enjoys playing for other people, but "at the same time I'm really playing for myself."

Hattan said he feels very fortunate to have had his mother's encouragement. "She respects my opinion and doesn't hound me to be something like a brain surgeon," he said. "Along with giving me financial help she also puts up with a lot of noise. Did you ever hear of quiet drums?!"

Although Hattan doesn't sing in the band, he does have a desire to do some song writing. "I'm not as interested in the words as I am in the music," he said. "One of these days I hope I can just sit down and let it happen."

While waiting for his work with the band to produce an income, Hattan would like to work in sales and is job hunting. "I can't afford to be choosey because jobs aren't plentiful these days, especially in this area," he said.

"Right now I enjoy just being on stage and playing music. If and when the band begins to pull in good money it will be a big help.

"But the music is where the real love is — it's all in the music."

LCP hearing is scheduled

THE MONTEREY COUNTY Planning Commission will discuss a final draft of the Local Coastal Program for the Carmel unincorporated area Wednesday, Feb. 25.

The commission is scheduled at 3:40 p.m. in the county courthouse, Salinas, to review recommendations from its LCP subcommittee. The meeting will be closed to public comment and is expected to be the commission's final hearing before approving the LCP and forwarding it to the county Board of Supervisors.

Voluminous written and verbal comment from the public was taken under submission in late January by the subcommittee of Gary Varga, Joseph Sullivan, Calvin Reaves and Peter Cailotto.

They are expected to present final recommendations on major issues, including development densities, zoning for the Carmel Mission Ranch and restrictions on the Odello family land.

Schools are told about cuts, cuts, cuts, more cuts

By STEVE HELLMAN

A 1981-82 BUDGET projection for the Carmel Unified School District forecasts a major loss in state funding, a large cutback of teaching staff and another tragically tight year for programs and curriculum.

Business Manager Robert Zampatti presented a 15-page report to the Board of Education last week. It considered a nine percent drop in enrollment, 13 fewer teaching positions and an overall budget for the 1981-82 school year that would be $100,000 below the "bare-bones" 1980-81 budget.

The school board also received a report from Dan Stevenson, principal of Carmel High School. It proposed the deletion and consolidation of several classes at the high school, including theater arts and two English courses.

Stevenson summed up the mood of the meeting, declaring that his annual report on the course of study at the high school was thinner this year than ever before.

Waving the report in his hand, Stevenson told the school board, "The curriculum has been considerably reduced over the years. There isn't much to it."

A CUT of another six teaching positions at the high school, as projected by the administration, would leave 32 teaching positions, Stevenson explained after the meeting.

He said the school had 52 teachers in 1976, and a cut to 32 positions would mean a 40 percent reduction in just five years.

Declining enrollment and reduced state funding have been the major causes of cutbacks in the district in recent years.

Zampatti's report, which hinged directly on enrollment figures and a preliminary analysis of state funding for next year, made the following projections:

* The present school year, with a $6.6 million budget, may end with a final balance June 30 of only $168,923. That reserve carried over to next year will be affected, however, by eight major factors, including reimbursement from the state for mandated programs to interest income and the outcome of an employee lawsuit against the district.

* The working draft budget for 1981-82 will be $6.5 million, or 1.5 percent less than this year's budget; the actual decrease in spending could be more because the figures do not take into account the impact of inflation.

Total state income for the district, which is based directly on enrollment, is expected to drop from the $3.2 million projected at the beginning of the 1980-81 school year to $2.88 million by June 30. The drop will be caused by decreased enrollment during the year.

Further enrollment declines could result in a cut in state funding to $2.7 million for 1981-82, or $500,000 less than the previous year's budget. That decrease would be offset slightly by an increase in local revenue sources, according to Zampatti.

He notes that the state revenue limit was calculated on current law which provides an overall increase to California schools of 7.2 percent. Gov. Brown's proposed budget would reduce that increase to 4.75 percent.

Superintendent William Rand said that Brown's budget could mean a real six percent decrease from the school district's present projections for 1981-82, or a further $400,000 reduction in state funding.

* The projected salaries for teachers would drop from $3.58 million for 1980-81 to $3.36 million for 1981-82.

Zampatti noted that reduction would result from 13.5 fewer teachers due to enrollment declines.

* Enrollment could decline from 2,442 students in September 1980 to 2,222 students in September 1981, or at worst a nine percent decrease. The most optimistic enrollment projection envisions a seven percent drop.

A nine percent enrollment drop would be the biggest in the school district's history. Enrollment has been declining each year since 1975 by the following amounts: 1976, 0.1 percent; 1977, 4.7 percent; 1978, 3.9 percent; 1979, 7.6 percent, and 1980, 8.3 percent.

The school board will begin its budget planning in detail this spring with a publication budget, followed by approval of alternative budget in July and a final budget in August.

Student musicians honored

Tara Speiser, a junior baritone saxophone player at Carmel High School, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Zane Speiser of Carmel Valley, has been selected to participate in the 1981 All-State High School Honor Band which will convene in Redding.

Miss Speiser was selected from a taped audition and is one of 300 students participating.

Other CHS honors went to Nicki Tostevin, trumpet, and Jennifer Banks, cellist, who have been selected to participate in the Central Coast Section Honor Orchestra.

Wendy Seal, bass clarinet; Paul Everts, percussionist; David Avila, trumpet, and Troy Ishikawa, clarinet, were selected to the Central Coast Section Honor Band.

The honors concert is sponsored by the Central Coast Section Music Educators Association and will be held in Santa Cruz, Fri., Feb. 27.

All of the honored musicians attend Carmel High.

Middle School study

THE SIXTH-PERIOD individual study program, which was given a two-week trial at Middle School, will be continued the rest of the school year, officials said. An average of 20 pupils attended daily from 2:30 to 3:30 p.m. The Parent-Faculty Club, with the cooperation of Principal Nick Nicholson and librarian Virginia DeJesus has arranged to continue the program. The only change is that the Friday session has been dropped. Parent volunteers help supervise pupils' homework and encourage reading. In the program above are Greg Hinton, Greg Harrison, Kristine Bryson, Jimmy Panetta and Laura Hanson.

Community meeting planned on student drug, alcohol use

By STEVE HELLMAN

COPING WITH DRUG and alcohol use among students in the Carmel schools will be the subject of a community meeting Feb. 25.

Parents, educators, children and a guest speaker are scheduled to meet at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, Feb. 25, in the library at Carmel Middle School. The public is invited. Guest speaker will be Elgie Bellizio, director of Sunrise House in Salinas. Sunrise House is a nationally-recognized counseling and self-help organization active in the Salinas Schools.

The meeting has been planned by a group of parents from Carmel High School, according to spokeswoman Maureen Girard of Carmel. She said the group hopes the meeting will open a dialogue between parents and their children on the increasing use of marijuana, alcohol and more potentially dangerous substances.

The group of parents came together, Mrs. Girard said, out of a common realization that there is a widespread problem of drug and alcohol use among children in the community. The group hopes to coalesce parents, teachers and students to fight the problem, she said.

"It's happening all over," she said. "It's not just a few bad kids. It's something we can't keep shoving under the rug."

Children as well as parents and teachers have been invited to the meeting to begin what Mrs. Girard said her group hopes will be an honest, direct approach to the problem. The Board of Education of the Carmel schools has also been invited.

KEN WHITE, a member of the school board, said he hoped the meeting would consolidate the needs, resources and lessons of different families toward working out a community-wide solution.

"We have no standards for curfew, we have no fundamental rules of conduct so that families can be consistent in how they guide their children," White said. "We're counting on this meeting to tie together the loose ends."

Anger and frustration over experiences with her own and other children caused Mrs. Girard late last year to send a letter to parents in the community.

"I got mad," she said. "It was an angry letter that asked, 'How long are we going to keep shoving this under the rug?'"

Several parents responded positively to the letter, Mrs. Girard said, and the group was formed.

"We are parents who want a better understanding of the problem," she said. "The kids are dealing with it all along. They're afraid to go to their parents. They don't believe their parents can handle it."

And in many cases the children are right, Mrs. Girard said. Pot-smoking and other drug use just was not a part of her generation's growing up as it is with young people today, she said.

"When confronted with it," she said, "many parents don't know what to do."

The problem demands immediate attention, she said, because pot-smoking and alcohol abuse have an enormous effect on a child's psychological and social development. She said children find it difficult to conduct a social life and avoid drugs.

The group of parents has already contacted a parents' group in Palo Alto with a working program to educate and help families, Mrs. Girard said. Parents here have studied the Palo Alto program and hope to begin something similar in the Carmel-Carmel Valley area, she said.

"It's happening all over the country," Mrs. Girard said. "There's a new awareness among parents that they must deal with drug use among children in their community.

"It's a new awareness that's growing and we want to be a part of it because we need to be."

It's beginning to feel like spring

By TERRI LEE ROBBE

MOODY WEATHER ruled the social scene last week.

It's a perfect time to catch up on your reading, browse the beach for driftwood or invite friends over for a hot toddy (or chilled champagne) around a roaring fire. But don't get too comfortable.

If the daffodils are blooming, can spring be far behind?

ROTARY VALENTINE LUNCHEON

When Carmel Rotary members hold their weekly Wednesday meeting at the LaPlaya it's business as usual — but not last week.

When holidays roll around business gives way to more exciting happenings such as a Valentine's Day luncheon.

The dining room looked like a big valentine with white tablecloths, red napkins and bouquets of red and white carnations gracing each table.

The gourmet luncheon included salad, New York steak, fresh garden vegetables and ice cream decorated with tiny, candy hearts.

About 75 members and their wives or dates attended the affair — and no one was in a hurry to get back to work!

The Rotary Club luncheon at La Playa.

DON AND JULIE ENGAGED

Don Nyman finally bit the dust!

One of our favorite bachelors, Don has repeatedly said that marriage wasn't his cup of tea — but exercising his prerogative to change his mind he's now a member of the "takes-two-to-tango" team.

The lovely lass who will walk down the aisle sometime in August is Carmelite Julie Heatherington.

"She's very special," said Don's mother, Anne Nyman. "She's a good sport and a terrific cook."

The couple will be married in the Robert Louis Stevenson Chapel. More on that later.

HOSTAGE CONNECTION

WARREN CHRISTOPHER (who did so much in helping get the former hostages released) and Eloise Kozak of Carmel are long-time friends — and worked together when both were Navy press officers in San Diego in 1944-45.

Christopher was a lieutenant in the Air Corps at that time and Eloise was a civilian.

Also working with Christopher and Eloise was Herbert Klein, who later became press secretary to vice president Richard Nixon during the Eisenhower administration. Klein went on to become director of communications when Nixon was president.

"Warren was an interesting person to work with," said Eloise. "He was concerned about humanity in general and was very serious and dedicated in all his duties. After the war I was living in San Francisco and Warren went to Stanford Law School, so we maintained our friendship."

Eloise and her artist husband, Andrew, are getting ready to go to the Napa Valley to deliver some art to another long-time friend, Mike Robbins. Mike loves Carmel and spends almost as much time here as in the Napa Valley.

DEBORAH OFF TO FLORIDA

Jet-setter Deborah Dougherty Weston is off and running again — this time to Florida where she will visit her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thurston H. Smith.

Florida is familiar territory for Deborah, who was born and raised in Oyster Bay on Long Island with summers spent on Florida's east coast.

Debbie's parents still live in Oyster Bay, but spend the winters on their 45-foot yacht Westgate, docked at the Del Ray Beach Yacht Club.

Now comes the big news. After living in Carmel for more than 12 years Debbie has put her house up for sale and will be house-hunting in Palm Beach. She'll also be checking out schools for her four children, Cornelia, Freya, Lulie (her godchild) and son Race.

When she returns home March 3, Debbie, who loves to be involved in worthwhile projects, will start a one-woman book drive for Indian children at Rough Rock Demonstration

School in Rough Rock, Ariz.

The school is for Navajo children ages 2 through high school. The children learn in their native language with English as a second language.

Debbie will run the book drive through Carmel River School — then borrow a friend's van and deliver the cargo herself.

Christmas a year ago, Debbie headed a clothing drive for the Navajo children — sending them 18 boxes of items such as sweaters, pants, hats and gloves.

"I looked for a project for five years," said Debbie. "I enjoy doing it and the children are very grateful."

Debbie will remain in Carmel until summer — then it will be bag and baggage to Florida's white sand beaches and a year-round suntan!

ATTENTION ANTIQUE COLLECTORS

Antique collectors will be delighted to know that a new shop filled with beautiful and unusual antiques is now on the boards and will soon be opening its doors.

Carmelites combining their talents as well as their treasurers in the co-op venture are Bob Beck, Ken Richards and Jim Nichols. All three have been in the antique business for many years and Bob and Jim have a general line of antiques. Ken, who recently moved to the area from England, specializes in scientific instruments and nautical items.

Many antique shops are oriented more toward women buyers, but the new shop, which as yet hasn't been christened with a name, will be more male oriented.

"We're not quite sure when the doors will open," said Bob, who has promised to keep us up to date on the venture.

TEL-MED TAPE LIBRARY

Almost everyone is afraid of the dentist — but, surprisingly, many people are also afraid of the doctor.

The Tel-Med Tape Library at Community Hospital may be of some help to those people as well as those seeking information on a given disease or problem.

Tel-Med is a telephone library of tape-recorded health messages, each three to seven minutes long. The information is designed to help you remain healthy, help you recognize signs of illness and help you adjust to a serious illness.

Tel-Med tapes should not be used in an emergency or to find out what your illness is or to replace your family doctor. If you have a health problem, you should not call Tel-Med for a diagnosis or recommended treatment. Only your doctor can do that.

Tel-Med now has 233 tapes with information on everything form arthritis to "I'm just tired, doctor."

Anyone wishing a brochure listing all the tapes should call 624-1999.

Tel-Med chairman is Philip S. Gray.

FLYING NEEDLES

The Monterey Peninsula chapter of the Embroiderers' Guild of America will meet at the First Presbyterian Church of Monterey on Monday, March 2, from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m.

Elizabeth Irvine, author and teacher of needlework, who lives in Escondido, will present a program-workshop on One Aspect of Playing with Bargello. Members will be experimenting with rectangular four-way Bargello.

There will be a $3 donation for non-members.

Panetta bill would aid farms

Farm families would be granted significant relief from federal estate tax under legislation introduced recently by U.S. Rep. Leon E. Panetta, D-Calif.

Panetta, a member of the House Agriculture Committee and its subcommittee on family farms, said his bill would provide exclusions from the estate tax for farms that continue to be run by family members upon the death of the head of the family.

The Panetta legislation would apply only to farms that comprise at least half of an estate.

Farms valued at up to $750,000, including the assessment of equipment and buildings, would be granted a complete exemption from the estate tax, while those valued at up to $2,505,000 would receive a partial exemption.

HOW TO SNEAK A PEEK AT TOMORROW'S FASHION IN DAYTIME DRESSES

Sometimes it's less awkward to get your first impression of a shop after dark. And so we leave the lights on at Bellissima! until 10:00. To encourage you to take a look.

The presentation may surprise you. All that space. And those lovely armoires with dresses hanging prettily. Antique mirrors covering the walls.

The emphasis is on daytime dresses. The selection is choice — knits, silks and light wools. You'll also see pretty blouses, imported hand-knit sweaters and a few interesting suits. All selected for an enduring addition to your wardrobe.

DON'T HELP REALTOR SELL

One of the best ways to move your house off the market in a hurry is to keep out of it when it is being shown! You should first tell the Realtor everything he should know about the house, especially unique features, and then let him do the selling.

If you must be around when the house is being shown, greet the prospect graciously, take the children and the pets and retire.

This may sound like uncharitable advice but, believe me, it's sound. The Realtor is a skilled negotiator; he has the experience and know-how to bring a buyer to an acceptable price without showing the emotional involvement which could put the seller at a disadvantage.

There are times when personality conflicts between buyer and seller have eliminated bargaining effectiveness and even lost sales. It can and has happened. Why take the chance?

CARMEL REJECTS SEASIDE, MONTEREY, CARMEL CONSOLIDATION

It is reported that at a meeting at Pacific Grove one evening last week, J.A. Pell, who used to be coroner, suggested that Carmel and Seaside be consolidated with Monterey.

As to the attitude of the people of Monterey and Seaside regarding this matter we are not informed. But we do know that the people of Carmel desire no such an unholy alliance as has been suggested — nor any other.

Aside from other important considerations, wouldn't "dry" Carmel and "wet" Monterey make a charming "damp" community? And the same observation holds good for a Monterey-Pacific Grove combination.

No, thank you, we prefer to go it in single-harness.

FIRE DESTROYS ONE OF CARMEL'S OLDEST BUILDINGS

The complete destruction by fire of a substantial frame building on Dolores street near Ocean Avenue, in the heart of the business section of Carmel, last Thursday night, could, no doubt, have been averted, and merely a nominal loss sustained, had our local fire department been supplied with fire hats and coats and asbestos-lined fire blankets.

The building was one of the oldest in Carmel, and was the property of the Carmel Development Co. E. Sims erected the edifice.

"Carmel luck," as someone remarked, was the only thing that saved us from a serious and far-reaching conflagration. It was a damp night and there was an absence of wind to carry the flames. Had it been otherwise the entire block is sure to have gone.

In the block are the Dummage shop, Carmel Bakery, Carmel News Co., Water company office, the Yard, Morgan and other residences.

COURT DECISION FAVORS CARMEL SANITARY DISTRICT

In one of the most important victories ever won by Carmel, involving the future sanitary conditions of the city, Judge H.C. Lucas of Santa Cruz last Saturday rendered a decision in favor of the Carmel Sanitary District, quieting title to more than seven acres of land, in a suit filed last year in the superior court.

The suit involved a part of Carmel's waterfront valued at more than $50,000. It gives the sanitary district full rights to the property and brings to an end a legal fight started several years ago.

Under Judge Lucas' decision, the sanitary district can immediately start improvements to take care of the sewage system. Until this decision was granted, the sanitary district had only half an acre of land in which to operate.

The property consists of the waterfront land from Santa Lucia to the river mouth, up the river to and including the island below the bridge, down the other side and thence down the coast for a distance of some 4,000 feet. Part of this land was in the name of Emma Otey who filed the quiet title suit.

MAYOR HORACE LYON SEEKS RE-ELECTION

This morning Mayor Horace Lyon decided to seek re-election to the city council. He took out his nomination papers at 9:00 o'clock, circulated them for the sponsor signatures, and returned them to City Clerk Peter Mawdsley 17 minutes before the noon deadline for filing candidacy papers for the April 10 municipal election.

Other council candidates are Geraldine Smith, Francis Whitaker, both incumbents who were first elected with Lyon four years ago, Roland Scheffler, Jim Buffington, Michael Franke, James Dixon, William Brown and Merle Murphy.

EIGHT WESTON PRINTS GIVEN TO LIBRARY

Eight framed Edward Weston prints have been hung in the reading room of the Carmel Library, a gift to the community from Carmel Highlands artist, Jean Kellogg. One is a portrait of Robinson Jeffers and the rest are from Weston's series of Point Lobos photographs.

Weston has lived here since 1929, first in Carmel and now at the Highlands, in the studio home which he built overhanging Wildcat Creek.

SCHOOL BOARD BALKS AT CORPORAL PUNISHMENT

"The teacher says the kid needs it, and the principal, who I'm sure wasn't involved in the altercation, says, 'Okay, kid, lean over'."

The statement was made by Trustee Hilton Bialek last week as the Carmel Unified School District Board of Education considered revisions in chapters I through VI of the board rules.

Bialek was objecting to a rule, made mandatory by the state education code, that administrators administer "reasonable corporal or other punishment" to students when deemed appropriate.

Bialek said he preferred verbal lashings be administered to wayward students and, while school officials at the meeting said they couldn't recall any recent whippings within the district, the trustee added, "I propose we have a policy that the principals call the parents and have them hit the kids."

Nostalgia update

Dear Editor:

A friend has just sent me a copy of a Pine Cone article by Joanne Hodgen published Nov. 20.

Accompanying the article is a photo showing my grandfather, Frank Devendorf, and several members of his family.

I think you would like to know for your records that the elder lady, seated, is not my grandmother Lillie Devendorf, but is Mr. Devendorf's mother, Grace Aram. After her first husband, who was Frank Devendorf's father, died, she came west from Michigan with a second husband, who also passed away. Her third husband, whom she met in California, was Joseph Aram. His name appears as the first signer of the California Constitution, and he was for many years a leading citizen of Monterey.

The young lady standing is my aunt, Myrtle Devendorf Gibbs, and the baby is her daughter, Elizabeth Gibbs, who was my grandparents' first living grandchild. This is therefore a picture of four generations.

By the way, the four daughters of Frank and Lillie Devendorf were: Edwina Devendorf, a sculptress, whose bust of her father stands in Devendorf Park; Myrtle D. Gibbs; my mother, Lillian Devendorf Hohfeld, and Marion Devendorf Argus.

Man's vanity

Dear Editor:

What happened to the gentle people of Big Sur?

Those who were against the harsh ways of today's society?

Among all the majestic beauty that Big Sur has to offer, there is a shop that hangs the hide of a once proud native of that land — the coyote. He is now a wall hanging.

Furbearing animals are again being the target of man's vanity. Not just there, but everywhere.

Is the fad to protect our gentle friends over?

Electing a mayor

Dear Editor:

Almost a year has passed since Carmel became embroiled in its most recent political campaign.

It seems an appropriate time to review the process of directly electing the mayor, which took place for the first time at the election after the aforementioned campaign.

The question seemed so simple when presented to the electorate in March 1978, simply: "Should the mayor be elected by the voters?" and the voters answered "yes" by a large margin.

Several things have come to light in actual practice.

In a General Law city, which Carmel is, the mayor has no more power than any other City Council member, serving only as the council's chairman. Charter cities may designate in their charter the special powers that will be unique to the elected mayor. Monterey and Pacific Grove are charter cities. Carmel is not. Formerly, our council selected one of its members to serve as mayor. The spirit of cooperation between a mayor thus selected and a majority of the council is a strong argument for bringing this practice back.

During the campaign, all attention (and a great deal of money) was directed toward the mayoral campaign while six outstanding council candidates were virtually ignored.

A question that arose at that time and was not covered in the original proposal approved by the voters was what to do about council members who choose to run for mayor and the procedure to be followed should such a person be elected. Unanswered questions include: How would a vacancy thus created on the council be filled? Should council members resign their positions in order to run? If so, when would this resignation take place? If before filing for office, how would vacancies thus created on the council be filled in order to continue the operation of city government?

It is our feeling that this whole matter needs study and review. Should this law be appropriately modified or refined to better serve the purpose as intended, or should consideration be given to eliminating this law? The latter would require another vote of the people.

In the opinion of the Carmel Citizens Committee Board, the law as it exists just isn't working out the way it was envisioned.

Swing to the right

Dear Editor:

So now we have got to bite the bullet — cut costs in every direction, slice the social programs, reduce federal and state help to cities (including anti-crime programs), look forward to income tax reductions designed to benefit the higher brackets, let the oil companies make unlimited profits, and borrow another $50 billion against the national debt, enough to keep us from bankruptcy for about another year.

Our president is right about our dire straits and our need to reduce federal spending or else. It is a tragedy for our nation that our president, with all his great wisdom, cannot recognize that his sacred cow, the Pentagon budget that he intends to increase at the expense of all the other budgets and the national debt, wastes more of our money than most of the other programs added together.

And the same right-wing philosophy that permits our president to blandly dismiss any thought of reducing the Pentagon budget also effectively sidetracks consideration of the fact that our arch-enemy, communism, if and when it comes to America, will not come by missile, but will instead be homegrown right here in the midst of economic and social chaos resulting largely from our misplaced national priorities.

But this was the route we chose to go. Twenty-eight percent of our voting-age population chose to swing with the pendulum and use a steering wheel bent all the way to the right rather than continue on with no steering wheel at all, and if we survive this crisis long enough to have another election, it would behoove us to totally revise our leadership selection system from "A" to "Z," to at least lessen the influence of money, diversionary hoopla, opinion polls and the news media.

Last council meeting called a travesty

letter from gwen
the other side of the grapestake fence

By GWEN

THIS IS an open letter to the Carmel City Council.

Gentlemen and gentlelady, I am embarrassed. I am embarrassed not only for myself and the city of Carmel, I am embarrassed for you. The last council meeting was a travesty, a travesty of good taste, good judgment and good sense. What has become of dignity, respect and just plain old-fashioned good manners?

Mr. Mayor, you have a heavy burden on your shoulders. It is you who sets the example (as chairman) for your fellow councilmen. They look to you for leadership and guidance; they are getting neither.

The meetings are a shambles. This is a democracy we live in Mr. Mayor, and as such each and every councilman has the right and privilege to voice his opinions (you do over and over again), and as chairman it is your responsibility to see that they have that privilege. But all too often that doesn't happen. Okay, so some of them are repetitive and long-winded. Time them. That's fair enough. But why the grandiose and humiliating tirade you made Monday night?

BROWN and Mrs. Arnold obviously do their homework.

They are knowledgable and perceptive about the issues. Brunn's impatience with any discussion is all too obvious. His only contribution is usually "Let staff handle the problem."

Lloyd still can't figure out what is going on. That was no more evident than at the last council meeting when he changed his vote three times on the same motion! He went from aye, to an abstention, to a nay. If I hadn't seen it, I wouldn't have believed it, and even then it wasn't easy.

Your Romper Room behavior is both unbecoming and undignified. I ask only that you conduct yourselves like the responsible officials that the voters of Carmel elected.

HOWARD BRUNN'S comment, "It is a shame a city of this size and affluence should treat its visitors in this manner" when the Devendorf restroom issue was addressed is another classic example of "A little knowledge is a dangerous thing."

Where are the public restrooms in San Francisco, Santa Barbara, King City, Fort Bragg, Petaluma, Sonoma and Mendicino? There are none, my friend, and for very good reasons — three of which are cost, hanky-panky and odor. Do your homework for a change, Howard. However, if you don't have the time or the patience I'll send you my file on my findings and you can send me your February paycheck from the city.

QUESTION OF THE WEEK: In this time of escalating gasoline prices and shortages of energy, why is it that we have yet to see a Carmel policeman (or woman) on foot??

If you want the shock of your life, folks, call City Hall and ask what was spent on gasoline last month for your one square mile city.

The figure is unbelievable.

I'M TRYING, trying real hard to "keep smiling," Mr. Mayor, but it's getting more difficult with each passing council meeting.

Would you settle for a grin?

Government's trough indeed has a bottom

mayor's report

By BARNEY LAIOLO

THIS MONTH we celebrate the birthdays of two great presidents, George Washington and Abraham Lincoln.

They are two great presidents who served in very difficult times. In those early days of our country there were many problems and difficulties, but thanks to their tenacity, those men were able to tackle the problems as they arose.

In those years there didn't exist an "alphabetical" form of government as we know it today. There were no bureaucracies and political pressures groups all vying for a cut from the government trough. There were no give-away programs, and what little one earned was well deserved.

I don't propose to return to those days, but I would hope that the new administration will be able to successfully return the country back to a realistic world. Much work needs to be done to reduce crime, to improve the judicial system, to reduce the time required to bring violators to justice and to sentence the violators to the maximum the laws allow. The free hand of pass-outs to non-qualifying people and phony groups should be eliminated. Over-staffing of governmental offices at all levels should be stopped, as well as the excessive purchases of non-essential equipment and land. Reduction in the reams of unnecessary papers from all segments of government should be terminated. Taking of private property without just compensation or to satisfy the whims of bureaucratic appointees is intolerable. The great push for unrealistic and impractical codes and ordinances in all levels should be stopped. All the above are products of bureaucratic bunglers.

Washington and Lincoln didn't have them then, we don't need them now!

Let's get back to giving a day's work for a day's pay and quit kidding ourselves that there is no bottom to the barrel.

I'm still smiling, are you?
Mayor Barney

P.S. A note of information for persons living in Carmel who are holders of special rate cards for subsidized taxi service. There are now on the Monterey Peninsula special vans fitted with wheelchair lifts. The vans are only for people in wheelchairs and for handicapped persons who cannot use the existing subsidized taxi. The vans are available seven days a week from 6 a.m. to 10 p.m. Two-hour notice must be given to arrange for one of the vehicles. If you need this service, call toll free 1-800-682-4707. This is one more way our city is cooperating to help our less fortunate citizens.

Police sergeant retires

SGT. CECIL POTTER retired from the Carmel Police Department last week after 12 years of service.

Police Chief William Ellis termed Potter "an excellent employee who will be missed very greatly. He is one of the finest employees this city has had in many years, and performed well in a very responsible position."

Potter was desk sergeant supervisor in charge of the records and communication division.

Cultural Commission, council to decide who gets gifts

By BABS COROVESSIS

THE CULTURAL COMMISSION and the Carmel City Council will hash out differences involving dividends from grants to Sunset Center when the groups meet on Monday, Feb. 23, at 7:30 p.m. in City Hall.

The commission wants the extra money that comes from interest and dividends, but Assistant City Administrator James Bajari said that would be tantamount to dictating to the city how proceeds will be spent, and therefore opposes it.

Bajari, in a memorandum to the council Jan. 29, said if the council allows individual accounts with interest, "the council effectively allows groups or individuals to dictate to the council how the proceeds will be expended and this leads to the potential for policy development on the part of individuals or special-interest groups."

Bajari said the council was elected to make policy to benefit all residents, and that "there is potential for abdication of that responsibility in assigning individual interest proceeds for individual projects."

He wrote to council members that they would have the greatest flexibility in determining the direction of the city by using "the interest within the city on all the city funds for the projects and things that they deem essential."

The commission found out at its Jan. 26 meeting that gifts of money or stock given to Sunset Center are earmarked for the center, but interest and dividends are not. The issue came up over $1,600 worth of stock donated to Sunset Center. After substantial discussion, the Commission voted to accept the stock and recommended to the City Council that "all interest and dividend accruals be credited to Sunset Center."

Bajari told the commission then its request would not be binding on the city and added "there is some question of whether that's dictating policy." He also said that the commission essentially gets the money back in its budget.

In the memo to the Council, Bajari stated that having the dividends and interest accrue to Sunset Center would "create a significant policy change regarding the accounting procedures within the city.

"The policy change would amount to potential for the proliferation of special-interest accounts within the city of Carmel."

Bajari added that it has been city policy to take money received and lump it together to investment in large blocks. "By doing this, better interest rates can be secured. Ease of accounting is assured, and better administration of all proceeds comes about," he added.

THE POSITION of the Cultural Commission is that it would be more workable if a way could be found for Sunset Center to receive gifts without being hampered by city politics.

Commission Chairman Jean White said many people are interested in giving to the center, but not the city. "We need a way to accept on behalf of Sunset Center," she said.

The commission decided to explore legal options. However, because the commission is created by the council, it cannot then form a private fund or a foundation.

The Hidden Valley Chamber Ensemble is a CETA-funded training program which offers local instrumentalists the opportunity to study and perform chamber music in an educational environment.

Musical direction is provided by conductor Stewart Robertson, conductor of last season's Hidden Valley Chamber Orchestra.

Robertson received his musical education at the Royal Scottish Academy and studied conducting with Hans Swarowsky and Otmar Sutiner. He has conducted numerous orchestras and opera companies throughout Europe, including the Zurich Opera in Switzerland and the Cologne Opera in West Germany. He is also conductor of the U.C. Santa Cruz Orchestra.

Ensemble members participating in Tuesday's concert will be Gary Beswick, viola; Mike Culver, percussion; David Dally, violin; Jurg Fehr, clarinet and bass clarinet; Suzanne Garramone, keyboard; Lynn Jones, flute and piccolo; Tim Kovatch, violin; Ruth Kauffman, violin; Paige Levitt, violin; Carmen Martin, cello; Don Nelson, string bass; Craig Olzenak, saxophone and clarinet; Rob Smith, trumpet; David Stevens, trombone; and Liz Van Loon, cello.

Robertson will perform as pianist in Crumb's Dream Sequence, and will conduct the Walton and the Ives pieces. Special guest artists for Walton's Facade will be baritone Reg Huston and soprano Velvali de Ayxa.

Additional concerts will be presented April 17 and May 8.

Donations to Hidden Valley Chamber Music Ensemble will be accepted.

'Misalliance' to open at Forest

Misalliance, a 1910 comedy by British playwright and Nobel Prize winner George Bernard Shaw, will be staged for opening performances Friday through Sunday, Feb. 20 through 22, at 8:30 p.m. in Carmel's Indoor Forest Theater.

Shaw's story is set in a middle class country estate in England, where a successful merchant (John Tarleton) lives with his dotty wife, daughter (Hypatia) and son.

Hypatia's fiance (Bentley) is visiting them. Hypatia is obviously fickle and foolish and Bentley, although intelligent, is a raw coward.

Into their midst comes a sputtering airplane along with its pilot (Joey Percieval) who turns out to be an old school chum of Bentley, and a Polish woman acrobat (Lina Szczepanowska).

The pilot falls for Hypatia's charms, and the Polish actress inspires all the gentlemen, including Bentley, to declarations of love.

A talented cast has been brought together for this production. Thomas R. Sanchez plays Bentley, Jeff Hudelson plays Mr. Tarleton, Gwyneth Hovick and Leslie Robinson alternate in the role of Hypatia, and Loel B. Shuler plays Mrs. Tarleton.

Adam Lembeck plays the son, Johnny Tarleton, Dick Bird plays Summerhays, Bentley's father, and John Brady plays Joey Percieval.

Barbara Shuler plays Lina Szczepanowska, and Stephen A. Moorer plays Gunner, a poor and wretched clerk.

Tickets are $4.50 general admission and $2.50 for students and seniors, available in advance at all BASS outlets or at the theatre on performance night.

The Indoor Forest Theater is located at Santa Rita and Mountain View in Carmel.

KERMIT THE FROG will join The Young Ambassadors, the internationally acclaimed singing group from Utah's Brigham Young University, in a free concert Thursday, Jan. 19, at 8 p.m. in King Hall of the Naval Postgraduate School. Everyone is invited to attend the family show of popular American songs from 1776 to the present.

College to host 'Belle of Amherst'

Monterey Peninsula College will host an evening with Helen Yuill as The Belle of Amherst, Saturday, Feb. 21, at 8 p.m. in the MPC Theater.

The Belle of Amherst premiered in 1976 as an afternoon visit with the famous poet and recluse Emily Dickinson. Written by William Luce, The Belle of Amherst uses Miss Dickinson's poetry, correspondence, and thoughts to portray the life, times and philosophy of this famous American writer. Luce developed the play as a one-woman show which won a Tony Award as a Broadway production.

As the "Belle of Amherst," Mrs. Yuill draws heavily on her extensive experience in portraying biographical roles. She has thoroughly researched the character of Miss Dickinson. Her performance was described as "the very essence and consciousness of the great poet . . . her fancifulness, her eccentricity, her irreverence, her creative genius . . ." by Dave Leonard of the Palo Alto Times.

Mrs. Yuill brings a broad combination of training and experience to the stage. A native of Canada, she graduated from the University of Saskatchewan and received a master's degree in speech from the University of Iowa.

She is also the recipient of a master of fine arts degree in dramatic arts from the Western Reserve University in Cleveland and was awarded a Rockefeller Fellowship. She studied at the Universities of London and Edinburgh from 1973 to 1974, is a veteran of the Pasadena and Cleveland Playhouses and is currently a member of the Los Altos Conservatory Theatre Company.

Tickets for the performance are $3 and may be purchased in advance at the MPC Community Services Office or at the door on the night of the performance.

Monterey Peninsula College Theater is at 980 Fremont St., Monterey.

The Young Ambassadors

Group to present evening of song

Wherever The Young Ambassadors travel, friendship is our message," said Randy Boothe, director of the singing group from Brigham Young University in Provo, Utah.

The group will provide laughs, dance, and sing Broadway show tunes, big band numbers, and hits from 1776 to the present in a free show Thursday, Feb. 19, at 8 p.m. in King Hall at the Naval Postgraduate School, Sloat and Del Monte, Monterey.

The 18 performers, backed by a nine-piece band and a four-man technical crew, present a 90-minute program designed to appeal to the entire family, including a range of tunes from Yankee Doodle Dandy, Aaron Copland's Tender Land, and contemporary songs such as I Believe in Music and We've Only Just Begun.

Their music is enhanced by lighting effects, lively choreography, and colorful costumes. Among the show crowd-pleasers are a green frog named Kermit and the Samoan Fireknife Dance.

In the summer of 1980, the group was invited to perform in the People's Republic of China. Their 10 major concerts received standing ovations in China's finest performance halls, including the Red Tower Theater, the most prestigious theater in Peking.

Jiao Yen, director of the Shanghai Song and Dance Troupe, commented on their China performances: "You brought us the profound emotion and deep friendship of the American people and brought us a step closer in the friendly relationship of our two countries," he said.

The group received an equally enthusiastic reception on their tour of Poland and the Soviet Union in 1978. The five-week tour included performances in Warsaw, Krakow, Moscow, and Kiev before live audiences of 12,000 and a television audience in the millions.

Their performance on the Monterey Peninsula is part of the group's annual mid-semester tour through Nevada and California.

Tickets are available on a first come, first served basis. For ticket information, phone 373-2106.

Thomas charms audience with 'Bones of October'

By MARC RIVETTE

AMERICAN poet Rachel Lindsay trouped through the South in 1906, exchanging his poem The Tree of Laughing Bells for room and board. He continued chanting The Congo and other poems through 1920.

Here and now, in the West, Tael Thomas, a young poet, continues this tradition of troubadouring. He appears for the last performance of Bones of October Sunday, February 22, at the Cherry Foundation Theatre, Guadalupe and Fourth, Carmel.

The stage opens in complete blackness, then gradually the light intensifies, showing the figure of what might be an old Indian in a serape with a massive walking stick. The face is craggy and wise.

IT IS, therefore, a shock after the first group of six poems when he removes his hat and cloak, revealing the face of a chiseled, handsome young man. Poets are not supposed to look that good. His manner, too, charmed the audience — even on a downpour night.

Though the evening is devoted mostly to Thomas' own poetry, he also recites, impressively in the original Greek, the poems of Sappho, and Heraclitus. The work of William Butler Yeats is also part of the repertoire. This winds up the first section or act.

The second half reveals a poet in love with nature and unafraid of tackling such languages as Hahuatl — though I did not detect a single person in the audience, including myself, who might take him to task if he mispronounced a word in this obscure language.

THROUGH the whole evening runs The Bones of October — four poems that give the evening its title. Perhaps the most striking poem, however, was Calls of the Common Loon. Thomas managed a single breathtakingly beautiful note that lasted at least two minutes. He is a swimmer and a scuba diver, and he attributes his breath control to those exercises.

Although I must confess that the prospect of an evening of poetry recitations does not fill me with unbounded glee, all that trepeditation vanished by the time that Thomas had finished the first six short poems. The audience and I were entertained and elevated.

The program was interlarded with a marvelous sense of humor, making it an enjoyable and rounded evening.

Bones of October is sponsored by the Poetic Drama Institute and the Cherry Foundation Theatre Project. Admission is $3. For reservations, phone 624-7491.

'Goodbye, Piccadilly' to open at Cherry Hall

Goodbye, Piccadilly, a theatrical performance on the First World War, will be staged Friday and Saturday, Feb. 20 and 21, at 8 p.m. at Cherry Hall, Guadalupe and Fourth, Carmel.

The play is sponsored by The Poetic Drama Institute and the Cherry Foundation Theatre Project.

Adapted and directed by Dan Gotch of the Poetic Drama Institute, the show includes the writings of Rupert Brooke, Wilfred Owen, Vera Brittain, Edward Thomas, Alan Seeger, and others.

The performance stars Brian Jarman and Tony Mariano. Deirdre Mooré accompanies them on the harmonica with familiar tunes played by soldiers at the front.

Additional performances are planned for Feb. 27 and 28.

Admission is $3. For further information and reservations, phone 624-7491.

Simon comedy continues

Neil Simon's comedy The Star Spangled Girl, a hilarious story of two liberal underground magazine writers and the ultra-conservative girl upstairs, will be staged Thursday through Sunday, Feb. 19-22, at The Studio Theater, Dolores south of Ocean Avenue, Carmel.

When one of the writers falls madly in love with the heroine, her natural disdain for him drives his protest magazine near collapse. The long-suffering partner enters, whose plan of an armed truce results in side-splitting comedy.

Curtain time is 8:30 p.m. Thursday through Saturday and 7:30 p.m. on Sunday. Dinner is served one hour before the show.

Prices for dinner and show are $16 Thursday, Friday and Sunday, and $16.50 Saturday. Admission for the show alone is $7 all evenings.

For information and reservations, phone 624-1661.

Paul Anka to perform benefit

Popular singer Paul Anka of Monterey will perform a benefit concert for Santa Catalina School Saturday, Feb. 21 at 8 p.m. at the school's Performing Arts Center, Mark Thomas Drive, Monterey.

The evening will begin at 7 p.m. with complimentary wine and hors d'oeuvres and a no-host bar.

Concert tickets are $50 each ($35 tax deductible) and sponsor tickets are $125 each ($95 tax deductible). Sponsor tickets include a post-performance supper at the school with Mr. and Mrs. Anka.

For further information, phone the school at 649-1432.

Carmel Music Society to present Southwest German Chamber Orchestra

By RICHARD TYLER

THE BIG NEWS this week is the appearance at 8 tonight of the Southwest German Chamber Orchestra as part of the continuing Carmel Music Society series at Sunset Center.

The orchestra has achieved an international reputation through its concert tours of Europe and Latin America. Everywhere critics hail its "effortless balance of elegance and passion" (West German Allgemeine Zeitung) and proclaim it "one of Germany's finest ensembles" (Munich Neue Musikzeitung). The ensemble, comprised of 17 musicians, has performed at major music festivals throughout Europe and has made countless radio and television appearances. The orchestra has also recorded many albums.

Paul Angerer has been its conductor since 1971 and has expanded the ensemble's repertoire into the romantic and contemporary periods. Under him, the orchestra has toured Italy, Spain and Great Britain.

Angerer is known throughout Europe as conductor of many orchestras. After studying and playing viola, he became chief conductor of the Vienna Chamber Orchestra. He then spent five years as head of opera at the Salzburg Landestheater and became conductor of the Southwest German Chamber Orchestra. After a recent performance, a leading critic in Munich exclaimed: "Paul Angerer is an outstanding and unusually skillful conductor."

HAILED as a "supervirtuoso" by the New York Times, pianist Michael Ponti's extensive recording and worldwide concert appearances have established him as one of the most important pianists of his time.

He will play with the orchestra tonight.

Since 1968, he has made more than 60 critically acclaimed records, including the complete works of Tchaikovsky, Scriabin and Rachmaninoff.

High Fidelity/Musical America said: "He must have been sent from heaven to play this music. His balance of dry wit and luscious sentiment is completely captivating and his technique literally flawless."

Hundreds of concerts and return engagements have made his name and art familiar to audiences in the major musical center of the world, including New York, London, Tokyo, Berlin, Vienna, Rome, Prague, Sydney and Athens. Everywhere he draws raves. In this country, the New York Post called him "a major pianist — one of the most spellbinding of our time." The Philadelphia Inquirer proclaimed him "a dazzling pianist" and described his recital as "a superhuman concert that no one who heard it will ever forget."

Ponti was born in 1937 and studied piano in Washington, D.C., from 1943 to 1955 with Professor Gilmour McDonald. From 1955 to 1961, he studied with Professor Erich Flinsch in Frankfurt. In the early '60s, Ponti won prizes in most of the important international piano competitions including the coveted first prize in the Busoni Competition in Italy in 1964. Soon after that, he made a memorable Vienna debut with five performances of Bartok's Second Concerto to a raving press and public. When Ponto made his New York debut in 1972, Life magazine wrote that "he may just be the Horowitz of his generation," and Time magazine considered him one of the most striking keyboard talents to appear in years.

During 1975-76, besides his usual recording forays into the piano literature, Ponti recorded Charles Ives songs with Dietrich Fisher-Dieskau, made his annual tour of the United States, appeared at the Bayreuth and Lucerne festivals among his many other European activities and toured Japan, Australia and New Zealand. In 1976-77, he performed with the Orchestre de la Suisse Romande and had European recitals in Munich and Zurich. In the United States, he returned to the New Orleans Philharmonic (where he played in 1975) and played with the National Symphony and the New Jersey Symphony. His recital tour was highlighted by a concert in Chicago. The years 1977-78 were highlighted by recitals in New York and Washington, D.C., as well as performances in many leading European cities.

WITH THE SOUTHWEST German Chamber Orchestra here, Ponti will perform the Piano Concerto No. 14 in E Flat Major, K. 449 of Mozart and the Variations in B Flat Major on Mozart's La ci Darem la Mano for Piano and Orchestra Op. 2 of Chopin.

The orchestra will play Schubert's Sinfonia in C Major (Quartet 1813) and the Serenade in G Major, K. 525 Eine Kleine Nachtmusik of Mozart.

Tickets may be purchased at the door tonight.

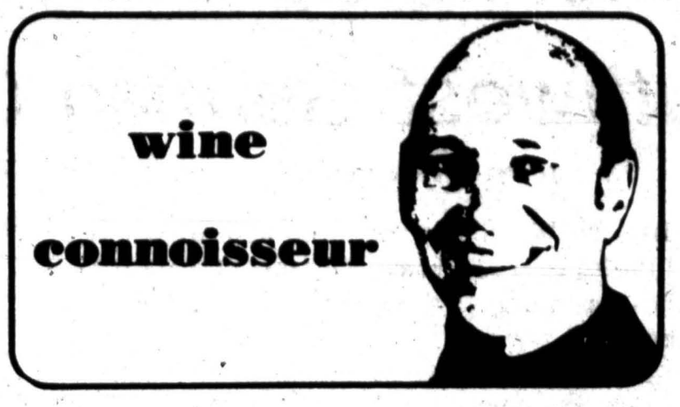
Great American restaurants are often found in hotels

By ROBERT LAWRENCE BALZER



EXPERIENCED TRAVELERS maintain that one fares better dining outside of one's hotel rather than in it.

Most of the stellar restaurants of Europe are not in hotels.

Statistics on the Travel-Holiday Award restaurants in Canada, the United States and Mexico point to a similar situation in the New World. Of the 379 awards given for excellence in dining in 1981, 306 are operations independently separate, and 73 are in hotels. The odds, it would seem, still suggest the golden hub of wining and dining well is in the restaurateurs' corner.

Perhaps. But the whirligig of time is bringing some changes.

American diners seeking extraordinary pleasure in the luxury of dining out want more than merely a good dinner. Their choice of a rendezvous must have some excitement in ambience beyond the menu of wine and food. It can become a learning experience; ideas of great chefs can be taken home. As a people, we're still moving out of the slough of culinary doldrums into which we were plunged during the brief but devastating time of Prohibition. We're all more joyously interested in good cooking than ever before. Better wines and better foods are the hallmarks of American lifestyle in spite of the new and higher price tags brought on by inflation.

The competition for those discretionary dollars spent on dining out has become an intensive drive of American hoteliers. All but two of the Dining Award restaurants in Hawaii are in hotels; none of the award-places in New York City is in hotels, but there are five new deluxe hotels opening in Manhattan this year, and beyond comfort and service, the lure will be in their restuarants, with super-glamor and stimulating wine supply.

It's highly probable that the number of great American restaurants in hotels will rise significantly in the coming decade for a number of reasons. The large hotel chains, like Hyatt, Hilton, Western International and Fairmont, recognize the need for the drama of a great restaurant. Within their organizations, beyond buying power, is professional operational intelligence. They have not only space for great and small dining rooms, but well choreographed kitchens, with the ultimate in equipment and inventory space for wine cellars of depth in supply.

IT TOOK a few years for hotelier James Nassikas of San Francisco's Stanford Court to bring his hotel-restaurant, Fournou's Ovens, into the circle of favored fame.

Self-conscious about that old restaurant-hotel dictum, he gave it, from the beginning, a separate name, separate publicity, even a separate telephone number. But today it's a booming prestige success, recently and glamorously enlarged, with one of the West's greatest wine cellars, 25,000 bottles deep.

Right across California Street on fashionable Nob Hill, is Richard Swig's Fairmont Hotel and his award-winning Squire Restaurant. Swig will tell anyone, with unreserved pride, of the magnetic appeal of that restaurant's dynamic sales of California wines from the so-called "boutique" wineries.

Breaking into the closed circle of acceptance in New Orleans has been difficult for the new and elegant Hilton, right on the river in the French Quarter, but Churchill's is winning from the excitement of its service, decor and wine supply.

Years ago, in the first days of the now well-established Beverly Hilton, Arthur Elmigger, the general manager, decided to give the West the ultimate in posh restaurateuring in L'Escoffier. It would be so grand it wouldn't even have prices on the menu. It was a ploy that didn't quite work. But the excellence of the culinary staff saved the day. L'Escoffier, never forgetting its classic inspiration, has had many operational facelifts, but is a dependable place for memorable dining and wining.

In my role as arbiter of the Travel-Holiday Awards for restaurants, I've always been intrigued by the unique excellence in many of the Hyatt hotel restaurants, which follow no certain pattern. When I asked veteran Hyatt executive Ed Sullivan of the Hyatt Regency in Honolulu what really made "the touch of Hyatt," he gave me a ready answer: "Each of our managers is given total autonomy . . . sink or swim."

One of our newest awards has been to the T.J. Peppercorn's restaurant of the Hyatt at Los Angeles Airport. After many visits, I never cease to be amazed and delighted with the stimulating menus of young Swiss chef Walter Urweider and the unrelenting drive of food and beverage director Victor Lopez to have an exciting wine list. Eighty percent of the restaurant's business comes from outside, beyond the hotel's guests. Hyatt's two newest bids for stellar American restaurant ranking are in Chicago, the La Tour of the Park Hyatt and the new Grand Hyatt in Manhattan.

Next month, the competition will become even more edged in the Big Apple, as the French-owned Parker Meridien opens its Maurice restaurant with high hopes for international acclaim.

While our thesis here has been to spotlight the growing importance of fine wining and dining in American hotels, we'd be guilty of omission if we did not cite our top-of-the-tree experience in dining during our time in Washington, D.C., during the inaugural week. New among our Travel Holiday Awards for this city has been Le Pavillon restaurant of Alfred and Margaret Case. When Beverly Hills restaurateur Jean Leon of La Scala told us he'd had one of the greatest dining experiences of his life at Le Pavillon, we begged our way onto the reservation list for the night of the Inaugural Ball. Dining early, we had time to talk with the maitre d'hotel, Janet Lai Wong, and young chef Yannick Cann from Brittany. "We have opened resources for the kitchen which do not exist elsewhere, such as the fresh foi gras which is flown in regularly," they said.

When we tasted the two chocolate desserts, one elegantly white, the other deep, dark and bittersweet, we understood why customers call from all over America to have them fly these incomparable delights to them.

We chose a Robert Mondavi 1979 Fume Blanc to drink through our multi-course dinner. Again, the wine list is in depth, accenting the finest of not only California wines, but well-balanced European selections.

Bottom line? Keep your eyes open for more exciting restaurants in first-line hotels, but don't forget the role of the restaurateur whose private portals are building the prestige of the industry.

They're making the "Taste of America" better and more exciting with each passing year.

Father Farrell's Wisdom

'Love can be felt'

By the REV. LARRY FARRELL

Invocation to the Carmel Rotary Club Jan. 14.

Let us pray: Oh almighty and eternal God, help us to follow Thy commands for without Thy help we falter.

Bless this turkey so that we may have the stamina to lift our neighbors' burdens whenever and wherever they need our help.

Padre Junipero Serra died almost 200 years ago and he lies buried about a mile from here at his favorite Mission of San Carlos del Rio Carmelo.

From across the ages and from the depth of his grave he sends us a message, loud and clear, that will be helpful in this modern world full of hatred and rejection.

The lesson is this: Love can be projected and love can be felt.

The California Indians were small, dark and wrinkled as an old boot. On the totem pole of civilization, they challenged other primitive peoples for the bottom rung.

The Spaniards told them that they were lazy liars. On the other hand, Padre Serra told them that God loved them and so did he. He said it; he meant it; and the Indians felt it in their very bones. They came in droves to be taught, but often just to sit outside his adobe cell and watch him and to bask in the warm sunlight of his affection.

Oh Lord, this miracle happened here in Carmel long ago. Help us to make it happen once again in our lives. Bring us from hostility to hospitality, from selfishness to service. Help us to get on with the job of caring and the task of living and loving before we become petrified in prejudice.

We make such ugly rocks and they are so hard to walk on.

Amen.

Finlandia Club to present exhibition

Scandinavian glass art, tapestries, handcrafts, jewelry, textiles, wood carvings and furniture will be on view when the Finlandia Club of the Monterey Peninsula presents its Fifth Annual Exhibition Saturday and Sunday, Feb. 21 and 22, at the Monterey YWCA.

The event is co-sponsored by Danish Concepts in Monterey.

Saturday exhibit hours are 9 a.m.-5 p.m., and a wine and cheese tasting will follow from 5 to 7 p.m. Sunday exhibit hours are 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Movies from Finland and Denmark and the homemade cookies, pastries and coffeebreads of the region along with coffee will be offered.

Artist Ville Virkkila's wood blocks and three-dimensional wood pictures will highlight the event. Virkkila is visiting from Brazil, where he has a studio, and is thinking of relocating in this area. Helsinki, Finland, is the home of his other studio.

Items are on exhibit and are not for sale. "The purpose of the show," said Finlandia Club President Eija Gavlick, "is to share what we have."

The Monterey Y.M.C.A. is located at El Estero and Webster streets in Monterey.

Everyone is welcome to attend.

Artist captures rural America on canvas

"My paintings try to capture and save part of America that will bring pleasure for years to come," writes artist Don Fusco.

His rural American scenes will be on view through the month of February at Helen Barker Gallery, Dolores between Fifth and Sixth, Carmel.

Fusco employs natural earth colors in acrylic paint to create a watercolor effect, lending his paintings a gentle, soft feeling.

The artist was born in Cleveland and received a bachelor of fine arts degree from Miami University in Oxford, Ohio. He has worked as a designer for Hallmark Cards in Kansas City, and has lectured, taught art classes, and judged art shows. His work has been seen in many national, state and area shows.

The gallery is open 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily. For further information, phone 624-6712 or 624-4642.

Arts of India series continues at museum

Robert Skiles will lecture on Late Medieval Hoysala Art Monday, Feb. 23 from 10 a.m. to noon at the Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art, 559 Pacific St., Monterey.

This lecture is the sixth in a series of eight on the arts of India, with emphasis on Medieval Hindu art from 3000 B.C. to the 15th century.

Skiles, who taught art for 22 years in the Carmel School district and lives in Big Sur, has access to the University of Michigan Archives on Southern Asian art studies and to museum collections throughout California and Washington.

The lectures are sponsored by the docent council of the Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art.

Admission is $3 for museum members and $3.50 for non-members.

The museum is located at 559 Pacific St., Monterey. For further information, phone 372-7591.

Chinese silk paintings on view

Seaside City Hall Gallery is exhibiting a one-man show of silk Chinese paintings and sculptures by Formosan artist Jack Fang of San Francisco during February. Fang, who teaches Chinese art at Foothill College, created a giant statue of Confucius in San Jose.

To honor the Year of the Rooster, Fang has painted white roosters and red combs on silk, along with 28 Chinese paintings of birds, flowers, carps, fishermen, bamboo, lotus, and landscapes. He shows carvings and sculpture of Confucius, Buddha, children, roosters, hens, and some handcrafts made from pine cones and bottles in the display case.

This annual Chinese exhibition is sponsored by the Seaside Art Commission and arranged by Chairman C.Y. Lee.

Viewing hours are from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays. Seaside City Hall is at 440 Harcourt Ave., Seaside.

The public is invited to see this exhibit free of charge.

For further information, phone 394-2965.

Backgammon

by Alfred Sheinwold

RUN FOR YOUR LIFE

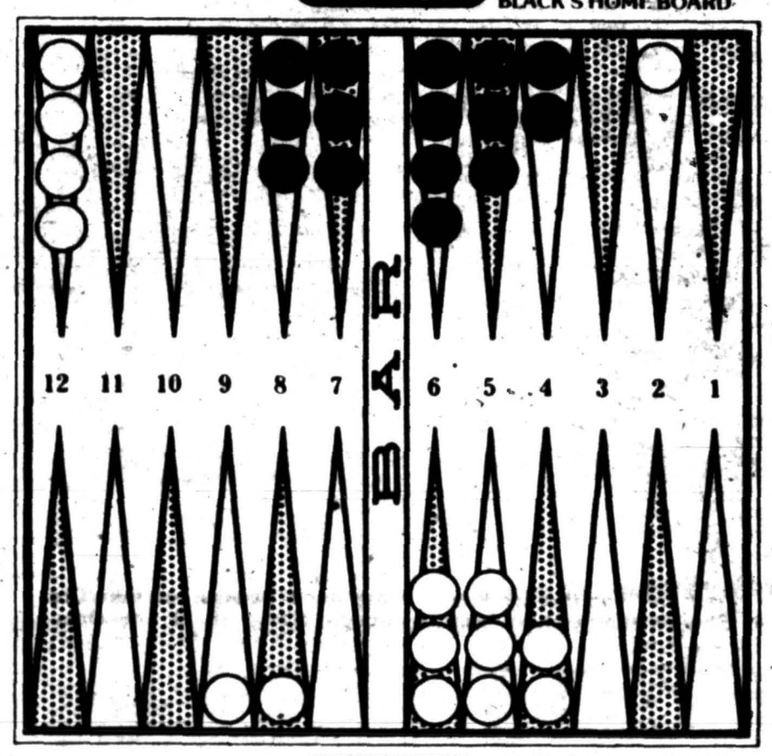
You, White, roll 6-5 in the diagrammed position. How do you play it? (You have accepted an early double, so that the doubling cube is now on your side of the table.)

Run for your life. Don't make the 3-point in your home board since any move that brings men deep into your home board wastes part of the roll. Bring two men down from your midpoint.

It is unlikely that Black will have to leave you a shot; and if he does, the odds are that you won't hit him. It is therefore unrealistic to concentrate on building your home board. It is far more likely that Black will make a point on your blot and that you will be shut out and gammoned.

Against this threat you must use every pip on your dice to bring your men into your home board. If you do manage to hit a blot, you will still be in good position to give Black a rough time. If you don't hit a blot, you may well need every possible pip to avoid a gammon.

Would you like to have Alfred Sheinwold teach you how to play backgammon? A 12-lesson booklet will be on the way to you when you send 50 cents plus a stamped, self-addressed, No. 10 envelope to Backgammon, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1000, Los Angeles, Calif. 90053.



NORMAN CORNELL (Kim Mowrey right) threatens to leave his writing job at the magazine, so the editor, Andy Hobart (Jim Webber) handcuffs him to the radiator in the Studio Theater/Restaurant production of Neil Simon's comedy A Star Spangled Girl Thursday through Sunday, Feb. 19-22, in Carmel.

Free films shown in Monterey

The Monterey Public Library will screen three free films Thursday, Feb. 19, at 2 p.m.

The first is Giants in the Sky, a 16-minute color film about the world's largest geese which were thought to be extinct by the early 1930s. They were recently rediscovered in a city near Rochester,Minn., and are now re-establishing themselves in North America and Europe.

Clothing and Fashion: A History, a factual and amusing 26-minute review of changes in clothing and fashion from early Egypt to today, is the second feature.

Fifteen naturalist photographers contributed rare footage of birds, plants and insects which depicts their interdependence in Nature's Half Acre, a 30-minute color feature, the third film of the day.

Films scheduled for Thursday, Feb. 26, at 2 p.m. are DeSoto — A Legacy of a Legend, The Making of a Natural History Film, Hog Wild, and Paintings In The White House — A Close Up.

Everyone is invited to enjoy the films. For further information, phone the library at 646-3930.

'Psycho' is screened at college

Psycho, the 1960 Alfred Hitchcock thriller starring Anthony Perkins, will be screened Friday, Feb. 20, at 8 p.m. in the Monterey Peninsula College Theatre, 980 Fremont St., Monterey.

Psycho emphasizes moody, fluid cinematography and nervous, razor-sharp editing.

Also starring Janet Leigh, Vera Miles, and Martin Balsam, the film is about a woman who absconds with bank money and the nightmare of horror which follows.

The movie includes some violence and although adults will find it a suspense classic, the film is not recommended for children.

General admission is $2.

For further information, phone 646-4010.

LARGE LOT, SO. OF OCEAN, $185,000

This fine lot is located on Franciscan Way in Carmel. It has an excellent view of the Mission and the mountains. It is oversized, about 80' x 115'. The owner will finance for a qualified buyer.

CARMEL VALLEY —EXCEPTIONAL QUALITY

On a mountain top, home of Georgian Architecture, over 4,000 square feet. Two master bedroom suites, library, dining room, living room, guest bedroom wing, many built-ins and extras. Highest quality materials and craftsmanship. Also, 20'x40' heated, filtered swim pool. Landscaping is exquisite. An excellent value at $725,000. An adjacent acre plus vacant lot is available.

ROCKY CREEK RANCH—BREATH-TAKING VIEWS—OVER 600 ACRES, SOUTH OF CARMEL

On a clear day you can see forever (almost). The ocean view goes north past Santa Cruz! There are fine, closer ocean views of Bixby Creek Bridge and Division Knoll, and beautiful views of the mountains all around. A good poriton of the property is either almost flat or gently sloping; some of it is quite steep. The vegetation is outstanding—groves of Redwoods, huge Oak trees, areas of Chaparral, Madrone, Manzanita and Greese Wood. Rocky Creek touches one corner of the property. There are perhaps dozens of large, practical level building sites on this magnificent acreage, one being an over 100-acre meadow. All this and much, much more is yours for $2,000,000. The owner will finance with terms open to negotiation.

2 BEDRMS., 2 BATHS, PACIFIC GROVE, $149,000

This is a recently and tastefully remodeled, light and airy home with a large, sunny fenced lot. It is only two blocks to the beach. There's a very large master bedroom suite. The kitchen has real tile floors and the customary built-ins. Excellent value at $149,000.

NEW, CLOSE-IN CARMEL HOME

This brand-new, two-bedroom, two-bath home is located at 9th near Torres, just a block and a half from the Carmel business district. Single-level, excellent floor plan, superb construction, with meticulous detail that must be seen to be appreciated. All rooms are generous sized. The neighborhood is very quiet, and it is an easy, almost-level walk to town. $290,000.

The Home Front:

NEW REAL ESTATE ERA

By Herma Smith Curtis

"Selling houses is nothing like it used to be—and never will be the same again," according to Jim Riggs, President of the Better Homes and Gardens® Real Estate Service.

Real estate brokers know that volatile economic conditions, a greater number of two-income families, single-parent households, decreased mobility, and more people living longer have changed residential real estate.

Home buyers are looking more seriously at construction quality, insulation, the age of major equipment and systems, and proximity to public transportation. Realtors® know that homes can no longer be sold simply with adjectives; home buyers must be able to see the value and advantages of their purchases.

Gloomy headlines notwithstanding, good housing values are still available. Realtors® can help you find those homes and can help you arrange for financing.

For more information on home buying, call Herma S. Curtis Better Homes and Gardens® at 624-0176.

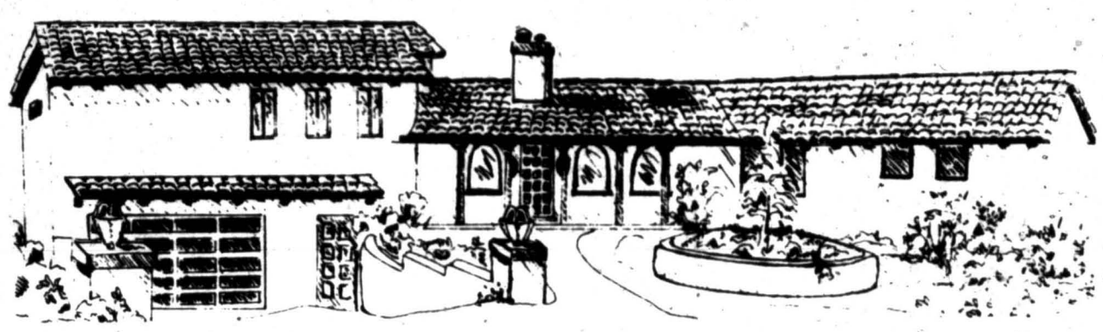
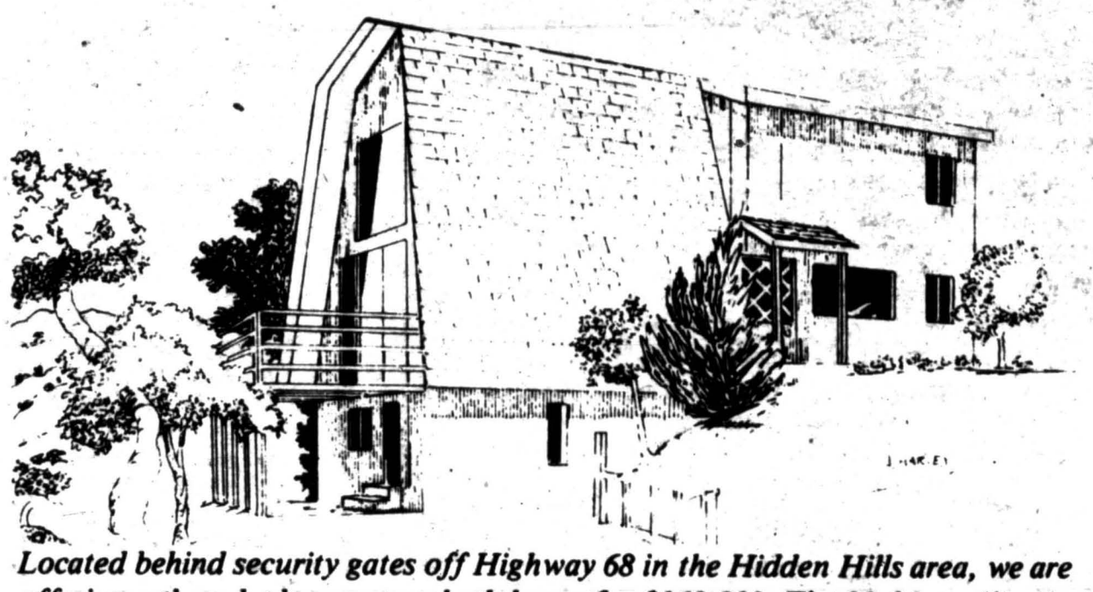
GRACIOUS LIVING AND THE FINEST IN FEATURES



High in the Carmel Valley hills, Russell Campbell built this home embodying the best of the Monterey Spanish influence. The masterful use of glass allows you to enjoy the panorama of the valley stretching to the Pacific. Sunshine and light abound. Imagine the living room dimly lit, and a fire roaring in the arched fireplace. Each of the five bedrooms opens onto its own deck or patio with view. The design lends itself to easy separation into three separate living units. Visit this example of elegance today. Offered at $320,000. Please call 625-3300 or 624-0176.

SECLUSION, PRIVACY, AND VIEWS



Located behind security gates off Highway 68 in the Hidden Hills area, we are offering a three-bedroom, two-bath home for $160,000. The 21-foot ceiling in the living room hosts floor-to-ceiling glass to take full advantage of the mountain views. The third bedroom with separate entrance could be used as an office or study. This easily expandable home is best suited for the bachelor, bachelorette, or young couple who enjoy seclusion, privacy, and views. For more information or your appointment to see this custom home, please call 625-3300.

COME OUT OF THE FOG AND INTO THE SUNSHINE

Designed in the Spanish tradition, this beautiful three-bedroom, 2½-bath home offers you beamed ceilings, hardwood floors, central vacuum, dining room built-ins, and oversized three-car garage. There are hillside views, oak-covered grounds, plus a large, sunny patio with fountain, surrounded by wrought iron fencing to house your favorite potted plants! The house is ideally designed for comfortable family living as well as for gracious entertaining. Located in the beautiful sunny growth area of Hidden Hills, a short commute to Monterey, Salinas, or Carmel Valley, and SO convenient to nearby golf, tennis, riding and swimming. Offered at $240,000 and includes a Home Protection Plan. Pleae call 373-2773 or 649-4234 to see this exciting home today!

ONE OF A KIND . . .

On San Benancio Canyon Road, we offer a three-bedroom, two-bath house, with large family room on 2.02 acres with corral, covered shed and tack room—all ready for your own horse. This house contains approximately 2,000 square feet and your family can move right in. There are fruit trees and grapes with plenty of land for gardening and animals. Insulated throughout, it is a must-see at $210,000. Please call 373-2773 or 372-4508.

CHARMING BLEND OF THE OLD AND THE NEW

Emphasize the Functional, the Positive, the Beautiful and THE LOCATION. Eliminate the Superfluous, the Negative and the Mundane and you have a Carmel home with separate artist's studio, South of Ocean near 13th Street. Here is the answer to carefree, joyous, ease-of-maintenance living within walking distance of the beach, Mission, Rancho Center, and downtown Carmel. An old, charming stone walk and wall enclose a sunny garden with a southern exposure that lightens and warms through sliding glass doors the living room and master bedroom, both with vaulted ceilings, in this very private, immaculate home. Warm-toned, wood floors, gas-lighted fireplace, and built-ins enhance the warmth and charm of the living room. The separate dining room with open, natural-wood storage unit overlooks a private patio and features wood floors and a sparkling chandelier. Both the master bedroom and the second bedroom have their own full baths and convenient closet space. A beamed-wood ceiling is in the compact, functional, fully-appointed kitchen which has a real back door! There is a convenient electric garage door opener in the storage-length, single, attached garage. The separate studio with a stone fireplace, wet bar, high clerestory northern-lighted windows is a private hideaway for the aspiring artist, writer, musician, tinkerer or putterer. COME! Let us show you the home for your Future, Creative, Carefree Endeavors, favorably, easy priced at $225,000. Please call 624-0176.

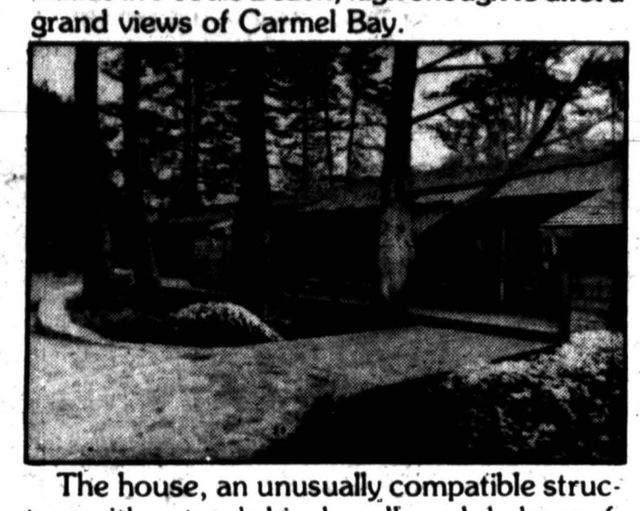
REAL ESTATE

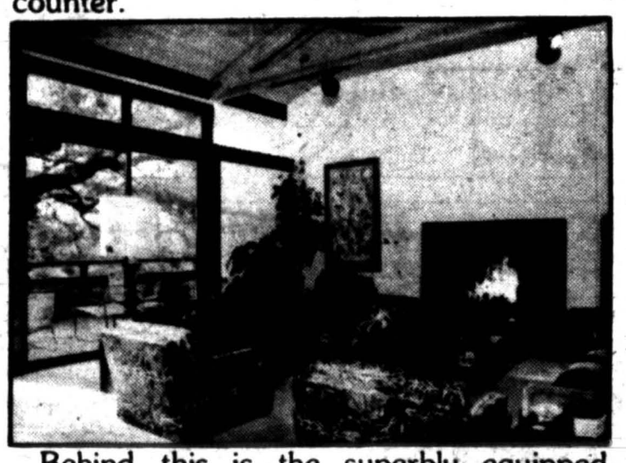
Last Word in Luxury

It's almost an acre of fabulously located land, just off the corner of Riata and Cortez Roads in Pebble Beach, high enough to afford grand views of Carmel Bay.



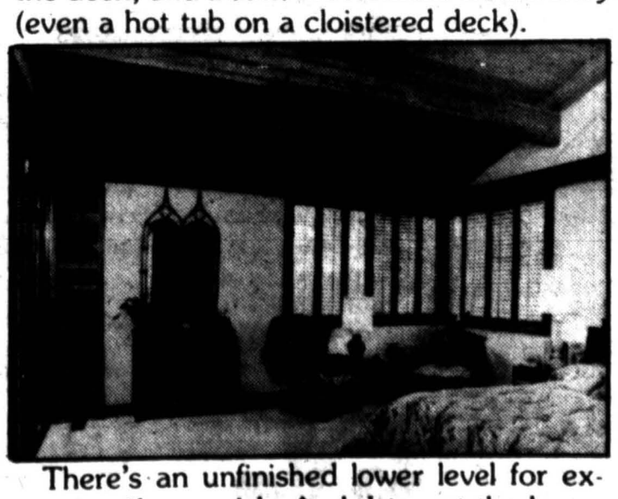
The house, an unusually compatible structure with natural shingle walls and shake roof, lies close to the electric gate along a graceful drive. Its wide front deck is approached across a footbridge. Once inside, your eyes lift toward the vaulted roof — massive laminated cedar trusses, topped by long, knotty natural planks that stretch the length of the house.

Spaces below are divided (with few exceptions) by semi-height partitions, giving an overall sense of spaciousness. Across the front is a wide lanai, windows on one side, bookshelves on the other. This opens to the 32 x 21 living room where picture windows look to a large deck and ocean views. A great marble fireplace dominates the west wall, and at the east end is the dining room with satiny cabinets and a long, marble-topped serving counter.



Behind this is the superbly equipped kitchen, with dark wood cabinets, butcher block counters and view windows. To its right the breakfast room, with oak plank floors and corner windows looking out to old oaks draped with Spanish moss. Left of the kitchen a 10 x 16 laundry, and beyond it the 3-car garage.

At the other end of the house is an intimate den: copious shelves, studious nooks, sea views and a comfortable half-bath. At the same end is the gigantic master bedroom: shuttered corner windows, sliding doors to the deck, and a bath the Romans would envy (even a hot tub on a cloistered deck).



There's an unfinished lower level for expansion if you wish. And down at the lower end of the property, a 750 sq. ft. guest house that's almost a home in itself: large bedroom and bath, sunken living room, stone fireplace and picture windows offering views of Carmel Beach and the retreating ranges on the other side of the Valley.

A very special place. $925,000.

JUST LISTED—A newly remodeled three-bedroom, two-bath home only one block from the ocean! This delightful home, situated on a big lot, offers a convenient floor plan plus a new kitchen with brand new appliances, completely up-to-date bathrooms, and new carpeting. There's also a double garage. Assumable financing, and the owner will carry a second. Just $155,000.

FAIRY LANTERN

That's the name of an adorable two-bedroom, two-bath cottage on Mountain View near Torres, in a delightfully rustic setting of Carmel yet only a few steps to the Village and its shops. The cozy living room has an attractive Carmel stone fireplace, and off of it is a large deck. We think a buyer will want to give this home some tender loving care — and when you do, you'll have your very own dream house. We'd better not forget to mention — there's a detached garage, too. $175,000.

ANOTHER CHARMER

The name of this one is Pumpkin Shell, and it's located in a quiet, woodsy area south of Ocean Avenue. There are two units, one a studio with fireplace, and the other a one-bedroom unit, also with fireplace. Both units can easily be combined, or you can use one and rent the other. Pumpkin Shell is completely furnished — down to the last teaspoon. Off-street parking for two cars plus a lovely landscaped garden. $300,000.

STILL MORE CHARM

Here's an appealing board-and-batten two-bedroom home in a prime south of Ocean Avenue location, at at the rear of a delightful, sunny garden. The good-sized living room has a Carmel stone fireplace, and there's a dinette off the kitchen, which has a pleasant garden outlook. Convenient floor plan. Detached garage. A qualified buyer may try for owner financing. Call us for details. $215,000.

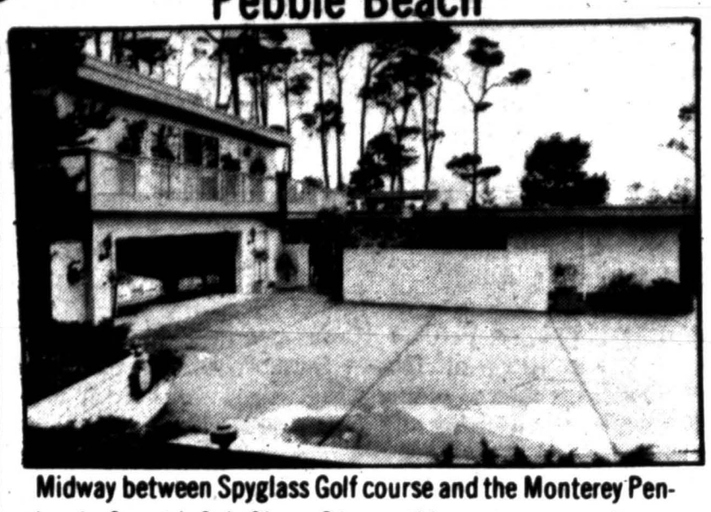
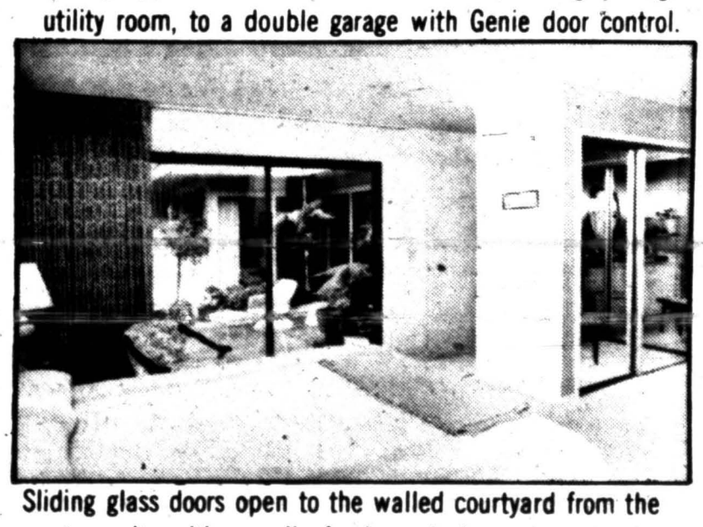
Pebble Beach



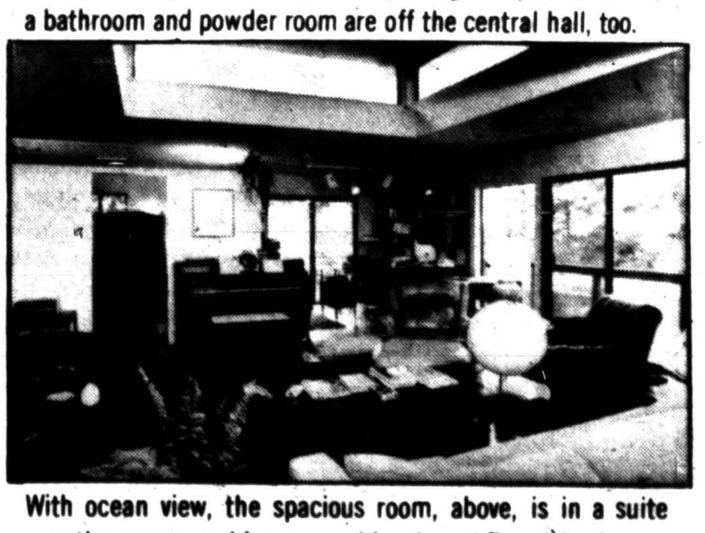
Midway between Spyglass Golf course and the Monterey Peninsula Country Cub Shore Course, this contemporary home, built around a walled courtyard, has ocean view and two one-room and bath suites each with outside access through a charming oriental garden containing a cascading stream.

Off a tile-floored entrance hall with a window wall framing the courtyard, the living room contains a fireplace, bookcases and cabinets, and extends into the dining room with a wet bar and sliding glass doors opening to a deck.

The kitchen features sliding glass doors to the patio off its breakfast space, also custom cabinets, tile counters, quality appliances and convenient access, through a large utility room, to a double garage with Genie door control.



Sliding glass doors open to the walled courtyard from the master suite with a wall of mirrored closet doors in the bath/dressing area. A bedroom opening to the front deck, a bathroom and powder room are off the central hall, too.



With ocean view, the spacious room, above, is in a suite over the garage and has pegged hardwood floors, bookcases and closets, also opens to a sundeck. The bathroom off it has a spa tub. The other suite is at ground level. Price of this home, with its handsome wood and stucco exterior in complete harmony with its forest setting, is $515,000.

International cuisine classes

Instruction on Chinese and Mexican cooking and free demonstrations on English Tea Treats and a deep-fried dish, Chicken Kiev, are on the boards this week for The Peppercorn Cooks' Club at The Barnyard, Highway 1 and Rio Road, Carmel.

The Chinese cuisine class will meet Thursday, Feb. 19, from 9:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. This is a basic class, and simple dishes such as crabmeat and cucumber salad, sweet and sour chicken, stir-fried water chestnuts and snow peas, and ginger beef with broccoli and fried rice will be prepared. A more advanced class is planned for next month. Class fee is $15.

A free demonstration on English Tea Treats will be Saturday, Feb. 21. Crumpets and scones are the recipes of the day. On Sunday, Feb. 22, Chicken Kiev, breast of chicken pounded, stuffed and deep-fried will be the subject of a free show. Demonstrations both days are continuous from 10 a.m. to noon and from 1 to 3 p.m.

The Mexican cuisine class is planned for Monday, Feb. 23, from 9:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. The class menu is Sopa de Albondigas, (meatball soup), Pollo Borrachos, (roasted chicken with sherry, chilis and olives, Enchilada Verde (green enchiladas) Erotes a la Mexicana, (string beans Mexican style), Frijoles Refritos (refried beans), Tortillas de Harina, and Torta de Almendra (almond torte). Class fee is $13.

No reservations are required for demonstrations. Reservations are required for all classes and become confirmed only when payment is received. Any remaining seats will be assigned on a first-come, first-seated basis. Refunds will be granted only if The Peppercorn Restaurant is notified 24 hours in advance of class.

For further information, phone 625-0100.

KAZU benefit planned at Mission Ranch

Folk music duo Reilly and Maloney will perform a benefit concert for KAZU radio of Pacific Grove Sunday, Feb. 22, at 8 p.m. at the Mission Ranch, south end of Dolores, Carmel. Pianist Janni Littlepage will open the show.

The television segment was screened recently on Channel 8 and was shown again at the awards dinner.

GOOD OLD-FASHIONED BANKING COMES TO CARMEL

THE NATIONAL BANK OF CARMEL OPENS ITS DOORS WITH A RETURN TO GOOD OLD FASHIONED BANKING SERVICE AND A COMMITMENT TO THE COMMUNITY OF CARMEL

We're taking banking back 20 years. Return with us to the days of yesteryear, when banks were banks and service was service. When your banker knew your name as well as your business. When your banker was a friend as well as a neighbor. Return with us to the days of yesteryear, as The Bank of Carmel opens its doors on the best banking service in town, on the friendliest banking service in town, on the kind of good, old-fashioned banking service you haven't seen in years. We may be old-fashioned, but we're right up to date. Our service may be old-fashioned, but when it comes to savings, we're way ahead of our time. The Bank of Carmel offers you all the latest money-making plans for savings, including Money Market Certificates, Treasury Bills, Certificates of Deposit and more, plus our NOW Account, the only interest paying checking account that comes with our brand of good, old-fashioned banking service. There are many banks in Carmel, but there's only one Bank of Carmel. Of all the banks and savings & loans in Carmel, only one is owned and operated by and for the people of Carmel. Only The Bank of Carmel is locally owned and operated.

Only the Bank of Carmel is committed to the community of Carmel, committed to devoting your savings deposits to local loans, committed to keeping your money in your community instead of sending it back to out-of-town, out-of-the-area, or even out-of-state headquarters. The money you deposit in The Bank of Carmel stays in Carmel, helping you, your neighbors, your community and your friends. Our Commitment to the community of Carmel. Because we are The Bank of Carmel, our commitment to the community is deep and sincere. To fulfill that commitment, we have some exciting plans in store for all our friends and neighbors. But before you hear about our ideas, we'd like to hear about yours. Drop by our offices on Dolores Street between 7th and 8th and come meet your friends and neighbors at The Bank of Carmel. Or drop us a line at the address below. We want to hear your ideas about how we can best serve you and the community. We pledge to do our best and to meet your needs with a return to good, old-fashioned banking service and a commitment to the community of Carmel.
